Ulbricht's Peace Treaty Plea Ignored By Khrush

Gls Halt Russ Cars Seeking To Enter Zone

BERLIN (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Sunday publicly ignored a plea by East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht for prompt signing of a separate peace treaty with Russia.

Khrushchev's move, in a New Year's message to East German leaders, came as American soldiers halted vehicles entering the U.S. sector of Berlin to enforce a travel ban on Soviet commandant Col. A.V. Soloviyev and his political advisers.

It coincided with a new demand by West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt that the Communists remove their anti-refugee wall in Berlin and a warning by West German President Heinrich Lübke that a Western retreat on Berlin would trigger a "far reaching crisis of confidence" in the entire free world.

In the New Year's message made public by the East German news agency ADN, Khrushchev marked the passing of his original Dec. 31 deadline for a German peace treaty by turning his back on Ulbricht's demand.

Earlier, in his own New Year's statement, Ulbricht expressed disappointment that Khrushchev had backed down from previously expressed intentions to sign a pact by the year's end.

The East German Communist boss had said his regime failed to accomplish all it wanted during 1961, but that the peace treaty remained the most urgent task for East Germany in 1962.

All Khrushchev said in his message to Ulbricht and other East German leaders Sunday was this: "The efforts of our countries in the fight for the signing of a German peace treaty and for the normalization of the West Berlin situation on its basis found wide support from all states interested in peace and security in Europe."

In other developments:—A statement by Khrushchev to a group of Japanese editors in Tokyo said Sunday that West Berlin must be demilitarized "in order to eliminate the very dangerous situation in Europe."

Report Shots Fired—West Berlin police reported that shots were fired early Sunday on the Communist side of the East-West Berlin border near a Potsdamer Platz. Police said the shots apparently were fired by Communist guards trying to shoot down fleeing refugees.

U.S. Commandant in Berlin, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, flew by helicopter to the American-administered West Berlin enclave of Steintücken—a mile inside East Germany. He expressed New Year's greetings to Steintücken residents and the three U.S. military policemen on duty there.

Eichmann Granted More Time For Plea

JERUSALEM (AP)—The Israeli Supreme Court Sunday granted Adolf Eichmann's lawyers an additional month to prepare the appeal of the former gestapo colonel against his conviction and death sentence for crimes against the Jewish people.

Chief Defense Counsel Dr. Robert Servatius had requested the month's grace to study the mass of documents presented in the trial before submitting his appeal. Under Israeli law Eichmann was legally entitled to only 15 days from the date of his sentencing to file the appeal, which made the deadline Sunday.

Financial Conference

BONN Germany (AP)—West Germany's deputy chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard, expects to fly to the United States next Sunday for financial talks with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, the government reported Sunday.

Troubled Mankind Greets New Year With Renewed Hope

By The Associated Press
From Times Square, N. Y., to Piccadilly Circus, London, from Red Square to the Berlin wall, a troubled mankind joined hopes Sunday night in a brief interval of worldwide unity.

Their words of greeting were different, but the sentiment was the same: May the new year be better than the year that has passed.

Western leaders expressed cautious optimism over the chances for peace— together with a readiness for whatever 1962 may bring.

President Kennedy, in Florida at the bedside of his ailing father, expressed hope in the success of this nation's design to achieve a world of freedom.

Guarded optimism was expressed also in an exchange of messages between President Kennedy and Soviet, leaders. Soviet Premier Khrushchev sent his personal good wishes to Kennedy, his family and the American people.

"There is no doubt that on the state of affairs in Soviet-American relations depends very much whether humanity will go towards peace or war."

In his message, Kennedy expressed hope that 1961 "will strengthen the foundations of world peace and will bring an improvement in the relations between our countries, upon which so much depends."

Many Americans went to their churches to pray for peace on the eve of the 1,962nd year since the birth of Christ, the prince of peace. Others tried to forget their troubles for a night and live for the present amid revelry and merrymaking.

New York City assigned 450 policemen to handle the throngs that normally jam the Times Square area on New Year's Eve to welcome the new year.

92 Squatters Take Over 35-Room Trujillo House

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Ninety-two squatters have moved into the 35-room mansion where Gen. Jose Garcia Trujillo once lived.

Some of the 20 families have taken over even the immense closets.

All are refusing to move until the government finds quarters for them.

The squatters came from nearby hovels. The mansion has been stripped of everything that was not cemented down. Only the bare hulk of the sprawling mansion remains on the western edge of the city. Jose Garcia Trujillo, a nephew of the slain dictator Rafael L. Trujillo, left in November.

The government donated the house to the order of Carmelite Nuns, which plans to convert it.

U.S., Soviets Rush Congo Flood Relief

Thousands Driven From Their Homes By Record Deluge

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Soviet Union and the United States are racing to supply emergency relief to a vast area of the Congo River basin crippled by the worst floods in the river's recorded history.

Political considerations were far from submerged by the swirling waters, which flooded thousands of families from their homes and shattered the economy of a region already made shaky by the upheavals of Congolese independence.

The high waters flowed more than a thousand miles down the Congo, reaching crisis levels first at Stanleyville, then at Coquilhatville, where the river crosses the Equator. Points further downstream, including Leopoldville, are preparing to meet the torrents.

The vital river port of Matadi had to close its harbor installations last week, because of the threat of rising waters.

River level at Coquilhatville was expected to reach 19.5 feet this weekend, the United Nations said, far above the previous high level of 14.5 feet set in 1909.

Two U.N. helicopters are being sent to Coquilhatville to airlift relief supplies to isolated villages in the interior, where roads and tracks have been cut off.

In Stanleyville water and electrical supplies were cut off three weeks ago and will not be back to capacity for three to six months, according to U.N. estimates. Residents reported Stanleyville had the air of a ghost town, without drinking water, without lights, with countless forlorn families camping out on high ground outside the town until the river recedes.

The home of Antoine Gizenga was cut off by encircling flood waters.

The danger to Stanleyville aroused Soviet interest, for this is Gizenga's stronghold and the center of whatever Communist influences remain in the Congo.

Over two weeks ago the Soviet Embassy in Leopoldville offered medical and technical relief for the affected areas, but Premier Cyrille Adoula insisted this aid be channeled through the United Nations—something the Russians have refused to do ever since Congolese independence.

Hodges Sees 4% Economy Jump

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said Sunday the nation's economy increased by more than 3 percent this year and he looks for a 4 percent improvement in 1962.

And, he said, "I think that we must have a larger sphere of free trade if we are going to really have the growth we have been talking about."

Hodges made his statement during a recorded television interview ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Hodges predicted that in the long run there will be regional trade compacts similar to the European Common Market. He said the United States "would have to belong to one or more of them."

But at present, he said, "none of us proposes we join the Common Market, but we propose there should be some kind of working relationship with the European community, known as the Common Market, in order to protect ourselves on some rather substantial items we ship abroad."

Peace Group Begins White House Vigil

WASHINGTON (AP)—High school and university students joined by a few adults picketed the White House Sunday to open a 24-hour vigil and fast in support of disarmament and against nuclear tests.

A spokesman said letters outlining their cause would be left for President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the White House and Soviet Embassy respectively Monday.

The 50 persons participating are from the Student Peace Union and these schools: District of Columbia Teachers College, Howard University and George Washington University, all in Washington; Westmont, Pa. Friends (High) School, Sandy Spring, Md. Friends (High) School and Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

The New Year's holiday weekend showed signs Sunday of becoming the safest on record.

The president of the National Safety Council praised the nation's motorists for holding the toll down.

"If the encouraging trend continues the traffic toll will be below not only any previous New Year's three-day weekend, but less than any three-day holiday weekend on record," said NSC President Howard Pyle.

The safety council had estimated 330 persons would die in traffic accidents during the holiday span from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Monday.

The lowest traffic toll for any three-day New Year's holiday since the council began keeping records in 1946 was 269 deaths recorded in 1949-50. The safest three-day holiday on record was Memorial Day 1948 when 204 persons died in traffic accidents.

The council pointed out that there were fewer automobiles on the road in those years.

The deadliest New Year's three-day weekend was that of 1959-60 when there were 374 traffic deaths. Last New Year's 338 persons died in traffic accidents, 66 in fires and 78 in miscellaneous accidents during that three-day period.

During a nonholiday period surveyed by the Associated Press—6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 8, to midnight Monday, Dec. 11—347 persons died in traffic, 42 in fires and 57 in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 446.

"Jackie" Reports Vast Variety Of Gifts, Donations Of Antiques To White House

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy, reporting wide response to her project to fill the White House with historic antiques, announced Sunday about 100 more gifts and donations.

They came from every state in the nation. There were even two donors from Canada and France.

Mrs. Kennedy and her Fine Arts Committee picked the year's end for their latest inventory. The last listing was made on July 4th.

Among the vast variety of pieces given outright, purchased for or loaned to the White House, were some items that once were the personal properties of historic figures.

The Mount Vernon Ladies Association provided on loan a Chippendale looking-glass used by President George Washington in the executive mansion in Philadelphia.

A pair of brass andirons and a fender from about 1850 that once were the property of Zachary Taylor, were given by Mrs. Edward Foy, Washington, D.C.

A mid-19th century mahogany desk used in the White House by Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Gartner of South Willfield, Mass.

There's a porcelain bowl, gravy dish and saucer made for and owned by Gouverneur Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and early governor of New York. This gift, dating from about mid-18th century, came from Eugene W. Bolling, New York City.

According to the committee's inventory, the acquisitions bridge the gap between the present and the past, including items from the administrations of Harrison,

Jackson, Lincoln, Pierce, Polk, Tyler and Van Buren.

Some of the gifts will be seen by the public in rooms open to daily White House tours. Others will be in the private upstairs family quarters.

The largest number of items from a single donor on Sunday's listing was the gift of Col. and Mrs. Edgar W. Garbisch, Cambridge, Md. Mrs. Garbisch is the former Bernice Chrysler of the automobile family. She and her husband provided the White House with two 18th century New England mahogany settees now in the Green Room, a tilt-top tea table, chest of drawers, looking glass, 19th century gilt eagle wall brackets, a classical mahogany desk from about 1800 and a pair of brass andirons and fender in classical style.

Rightist Coup Attempt Fails; Plotters Flee

Five Persons Slain In Beirut Fighting; Hostages Released

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Arab rightists and 60 army backers tried to seize power Sunday, but were beaten in a Beirut battle and fled to the hills with four key officers as hostages. Hours later, an army communique said the officers had been freed and the revolt crushed.

Beirut radio said five persons were killed and several wounded in the fighting, which erupted before dawn in this capital, and 50 suspected plotters were arrested.

Repulsed in a battle at the Defense Ministry, the plotters had fled toward the mountain stronghold of Wadi el Karm, 30 miles above this capital, with a cousin of President Fuad Chehab among their hostages.

Outlawed Party Chief Seized
The communique announced the arrest of the chief of the Popular Socialist party, an organization with a long history of violence that is outlawed throughout most of the Middle East.

Premier Radhié Karami's pro-western government, in a communique, had blamed the "attempt at violence" on the party and a few members of the army.

The newspaper Maariv in Tel Aviv, Israel, said the attempted revolt was the work of pro-Nasser elements. It said the uprising followed increased tension caused by charges by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic that pro-Western Lebanese leaders supported Syria's recent break with the U.A.R.

Defense Ministry Stormed
Striking a few hours after midnight, armed members of the Popular Socialist party and a 60-man military group led by two captains tried to seize the Defense Ministry in southeastern Beirut.

After sharp fighting inside the building they were repulsed and many were captured.

At the same time other party members had surrounded the homes of several prominent military officers. Four were seized and taken away. They were identified as Lt. Col. Youssef Shmeit, the army chief of staff; Lt. Col. Abdel Kader Chehab, a commander in Beirut who is President

Council Begins Dominican Rule

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—After 31 years of tyranny, Dominicans prepared Sunday night to usher in 1962 with a new government and new hope for democracy.

A seven-man Council of State will be inaugurated on New Year's Day at the national palace, replacing the regime left behind by the late dictator Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

The council—to rule until after general elections next December—will give Dominicans the first new form of government since the U. S. Marine occupation ended in 1924.

A big boost to the new regime is expected to come almost immediately with lifting of hemisphere sanctions against the country. The sanctions, imposed during the Trujillo era by the Organization of American States, were kept on in the political chaos that followed Trujillo's assassination last May.

President Joaquin Balaguer has promised to step down as temporary head of the council as soon as the OAS diplomatic and economic sanctions are ended, a step expected next week.

Bandits Rob Couple Of $44,700 In Gems

NEW YORK (UPI)—The president of the Mosler Safe Corporation and his wife were held up by two bandits in Manhattan early Sunday and robbed of jewels valued at $44,700.

Police said John Mosler and his wife Sheila were returning to their 5th Ave. home in their car.

Outside the apartment two men with pistols suddenly got in the car. One shoved Mosler over and got in the driver's seat. The other got in the back seat. They drove off.

The men took the gems—including a pair of earrings valued at $25,000 and $300 cash and left the car.

Americans were not the only ones celebrating. In Rome, Italians gathered crockery to throw into the street at midnight—symbolizing the discard of the old year.

In a more serious mood, Italians gathered at St. Peter's Square to receive Pope John XXIII's last public blessing of 1961.

In Japan, meanwhile, thousands of temple bells rang out the old year as part of a religious tradition practiced for hundreds of years. New Year's—a sacred holiday for the Japanese—is no time for loud, Western-style celebrations.

Each temple bell rings out 108 times to atone for the 108 sins the Buddhists believe man commits during the year. Japanese flocked to the temples and shrines to pray for health and prosperity in 1962—the year of the tiger according to the oriental Zodiac.

Russians celebrate New Year's as the biggest of the nonpatriotic holidays. Comrades exchange gifts, while children receive them from Grandfather Frost, the Soviet, nonreligious version of Santa Claus.

Filipino President Holds "Open House"

MANILA (AP)—President Diosdado Macapagal opened the presidential palace to all Filipinos Sunday.

Thousands of peasants—many barefooted—walked on the plush carpets as they toured the palace on a presidential invitation to come whenever they like. In another directive shortly after his inauguration Saturday, Macapagal ordered the sale of the $2.5-million presidential yacht, Lapu Lapu. He said it is an unnecessary luxury.

Ofelia Garcia, 35, who worked six years as a cook for the Trujillos in this house, now occupies part of what once was the library. "We have nothing else, nowhere to go. This provided a better shelter than the rat-infested place where we used to live."

Bienvenido Asencio, 32, keeps a family of six and a wife on what he is able to make off the sale of hot coffee out of a vacuum bottle.

"I make about 50 centavos (50 cents) daily and you'd be surprised how that helps," he said. A university student, Ramon Flores, 19, said: "It's airier than what we had before. Also cleaner. Sometimes it gets cold enough when the sea breeze comes." The house has no windows.

U.S., Soviets Rush Congo Flood Relief

Residents reported Stanleyville had the air of a ghost town, without drinking water, without lights, with countless families camping out on high ground outside the town until the river recedes.

The home of Antoine Gizenga was cut off by encircling flood waters.

The danger to Stanleyville aroused Soviet interest, for this is Gizenga's stronghold and the center of whatever Communist influences remain in the Congo.

Over two weeks ago the Soviet Embassy in Leopoldville offered medical and technical relief for the affected areas, but Premier Cyrille Adoula insisted this aid be channeled through the United Nations—something the Russians have refused to do ever since Congolese independence.

New York Faces Bus Strike Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—A strike against two major bus lines which carry 1.5 million riders daily in New York and its northern suburbs was geared to roll in with the new year at midnight Sunday night.

The threatened lines are Fifth Ave. Coach Co., which for years operated one of the city's prime tourist attractions—the double-decker bus—and its subsidiary, Surface Transit Inc.

Mike Quill's Transport Union issued final walkout instructions to 6,700 drivers and mechanics on the two lines after negotiations for a new two-year contract reached a stalemate.

Iraq's Premier Is Determined To 'Free' Kuwait

BAGHDAD (UPI)—Premier Abdel Karim Kassem Sunday said Iraq is determined to "liberate" oil-rich Kuwait and warned that "no threat or provocation will stand in the way."

In an interview published by the newspaper Al Thawra, Kassem said "The liberation of Kuwait forms part of the July revolution mission."

Kassem dismissed recent British naval and military moves in the Middle East as "threats of no importance."

"We know how to answer them and give the imperialists a lesson they will not forget," he said. "We've set our determination to liberate and restore Kuwait and shall attain our right regardless of whether imperialism agrees or not."

Kassem first claimed Kuwait was part of Iraq last June. Immediately after Britain and Kuwait's ruler signed an agreement by which the tiny oil-rich sheikdom became independent.

A British force then landed in Kuwait at the request of ruling Sheikh Abdullah As-salim As-sabah. British troops were replaced by an Arab League force last fall.

Bailey Warns GOP Extremists Demo Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—National Chairman John M. Bailey predicted Sunday a 1962 test of political strength between Democrats and "right-wing extremists in the Republican party."

In an annual report to Democratic Committee members and state chairmen, Bailey accused the Republicans of making an alliance with conservative fringe groups.

"The Republicans are more and more taking their ideas from the reckless radicals of the far right and echoing the efforts of these extremist agitators to breed fear and suspicion in our society," Bailey said. "It would seem that a new political axis is in the process of formation."

"It is a strange alliance of Republicans and the fringe groups of self-appointed patriots who prey upon ignorance and prejudice. This curious union of Republicans and right-wing fanatics can best be described as the fanatic party."

Bailey's attack indicated the Democrats will attempt in this year's congressional elections to label what some Republicans call a swing toward conservatism as really a movement of extremists. Bailey said these include "political witch doctors, retired martinis and neurotic victims of the neo-Fascist lecture circuit."

Bailey said the Democrats have no illusions about the tough fights they face in attempting to hold their own this year in Congress, where they have roughly two-thirds of the membership of both houses. He noted that only once in the last 60 years—in 1934—has the party in power gained seats in the nonpresidential year elections.

Rightist Coup Attempt Fails; Plotters Flee

Five Persons Slain In Beirut Fighting; Hostages Released

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Arab rightists and 60 army backers tried to seize power Sunday, but were beaten in a Beirut battle and fled to the hills with four key officers as hostages. Hours later, an army communique said the officers had been freed and the revolt crushed.

Beirut radio said five persons were killed and several wounded in the fighting, which erupted before dawn in this capital, and 50 suspected plotters were arrested.

Repulsed in a battle at the Defense Ministry, the plotters had fled toward the mountain stronghold of Wadi el Karm, 30 miles above this capital, with a cousin of President Fuaad Chehab among their hostages.

Outlawed Party Chief Seized

The communique announced the arrest of the chief of the Popular Socialist party, an organization with a long history of violence that is outlawed throughout most of the Middle East.

Premier Radhiq Karami's pro-western government, in a communique, had blamed the "attempt at violence" on the party and a few members of the army.

The newspaper Maariv in Tel Aviv, Israel, said the attempted revolt was the work of pro-Nasser elements. It said the uprising followed increased tension caused by charges by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic that pro-Western Lebanese leaders supported Syria's recent break with the U.A.R.

Defense Ministry Stormed

Striking a few hours after midnight, armed members of the Popular Socialist party and a 60-man military group led by two captains tried to seize the Defense Ministry in southeastern Beirut.

After sharp fighting inside the building they were repulsed and many were captured.

At the same time other party members had surrounded the homes of several prominent military officers. Four were seized and taken away. They were identified as Lt. Col. Yusef Shmeit, the army chief of staff; Lt. Col. Abdel Kader Chehab, a commander in Beirut who is President

Council Begins Dominican Rule

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—After 31 years of tyranny, Dominicans prepared Sunday night to usher in 1962 with a new government and new hope for democracy.

A seven-man Council of State will be inaugurated on New Year's Day at the national palace, replacing the regime left behind by the late dictator Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

The council—to rule until after general elections next December—will give Dominicans the first new form of government since the U.S. Marine occupation ended in 1924.

A big boost to the new regime is expected to come almost immediately with lifting of hemisphere sanctions against the country. The sanctions, imposed during the Trujillo era by the Organization of American States, were kept on in the political chaos that followed Trujillo's assassination last May.

President Joaquin Balaguer has promised to step down as temporary head of the council as soon as the OAS diplomatic and economic sanctions are ended, a step expected next week.

Bandits Rob Couple Of $44,700 In Gems

NEW YORK (UPI)—The president of the Mosler Safe Corporation and his wife were held up by two bandits in Manhattan early Sunday and robbed of jewels valued at $44,700.

Police said John Mosler and his wife Sheila were returning to their 5th Ave. home in their car. Outside the apartment two men with pistols suddenly got in the car. One shoved Mosler over and got in the driver's seat. The other got in the back seat. They drove off.

The men took the gems—including a pair of earrings valued at $25,000 and $300 cash and left the car.

Swing To Kennedy 'Investment Credit' Tax Goal Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is rising confidence in the administration Sunday that the first stage of President Kennedy's two-year blueprint for tax reform will become law in the spring.

The administration has made some recent and unpublicized soundings of business opinion. They reportedly show a surprising swing in favor of Kennedy's major tax goal for 1962—the "investment credit" to spur industry's spending on new plants and equipment.

The second stage, far more ambitious and sure to provide the tax battle of 1963, will call for substantial cuts in all income tax rates. These would be accompanied by some drastic surgery on special exemptions and preferences throughout the tax structure.

That phase will be unveiled in a special message later in the coming session of Congress, to give time for year-long hearings, debate and public discussion. The outcome is anybody's guess.

But the first-stage tax program has must billing at the White House administration sources said. It may get stronger administration pushing then any legislative proposal except possibly Kennedy's request for broadened tariff-cutting powers.

The administration's major sales pitch will be: This is the most effective way, if not the only way, to bring about a quick start on the modernization of U.S. industry for successful competition against low-cost foreign producers.

The rising White House optimism is discounted by a good many tax-wise members of Congress. Kennedy will get parts of the first-stage program, they agree generally, but not the whole bundle.

The administration has obtained a pledge from Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee that the 8 per cent investment credit, part of the unfinished business of last session will be the first order of business for the tax-writing committee.

Administration officials predicted that the committee, which heard almost solid opposition from industry witnesses last spring, will discover that many corporations and some industry associations have been converted since then. Still, the opposition of such important groups as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has not wavered.

Deer antlers are solid and shed annually.

Tawes, Rivals Clash On Saving And Loan Issue

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes' two major opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination—George P. Mahoney and David Hume—assailed the chief executive Saturday for his handling of legislation governing the state's savings and loan industry.

Mahoney cited the "unsavory atmosphere surrounding the savings and loan industry in Maryland," and he censured Tawes for his veto last year of the Tydings Bill, drafted to provide stopgap regulation of the industry.

Hume, from Charles County, called for a "sweeping investigation" of the building and loan situation in Maryland and charged that Tawes had "succumbed to lobbying pressure on behalf of the less responsible institutions."

Tawes replied to Mahoney's statement and Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan, one of the governor's running mates in the May primary, responded to Hume's remarks.

Citing the Case Bill, which now governs savings and loan firms and which was passed this year with the aid of the governor's backing, Tawes said the Tydings Bill had "little or no teeth in it."

"If it (the Tydings Bill) had been enacted... it would have created the false impression that savings and loan institutions were adequately regulated... and would have had the effect of lulling the investing public into a false sense of security," the governor said.

Tawes said the Tydings measure failed to give the State Department of Assessments and Taxation the power to examine the books and records of the savings and loan institutions. He declared that in some respects the stopgap legislation favored nonresident corporations over Maryland firms.

"If Mr. Mahoney had studied this bill he would know this to be true," the governor remarked.

In rebuttal, Mahoney said he had "studied the bill and studied it thoroughly."

"No one claimed it was a perfect bill," Mahoney continued, "but it would have been invaluable in holding the line until a study could have been made and a comprehensive bill drawn up and passed."

"Gov. Tawes' reasons for vetoing the bill were very thin and specious then (when he vetoed the bill), and look even more thin and specious today. My questions still remain unanswered," the Baltimore County contractor said.

Finan called Hume's remarks "completely irresponsible and a distortion of the facts."

Tawes To Seek More Defense Work For State

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Saturday he hopes to convince Defense Department officials that the curtailment of defense spending in Maryland imperils both national security and the state's economy.

The governor and five congressmen representing Maryland planned to meet with members of the Defense Department Tuesday to discuss the possibility of the state's getting more contracts.

The governor called the meeting after the Martin Marietta Corp.'s Middle River plant in Baltimore County announced that 2,500 workers are to be laid off within two weeks.

"Areas of our state have come to depend heavily upon government contracts for the maintenance of stable employment," the governor said.

"It is essential not only to Maryland that the state's supply of skilled technicians be utilized, Tawes declared. "It is essential to our national security," he added.

The following congressmen—all Democrats—were expected to attend Tuesday's meeting in the Pentagon:

Daniel Brewster, George Fallon, Samuel Friedel, Edward Garmatz and Richard Lankford.

Others who planned to attend were Harry A. Boswell Jr., chairman of the Maryland State Economic Development Commission; Edmund C. Mester, executive assistant to the governor; officials representing the aircraft workers union at Martin Marietta; representatives of that firm, and G. C. Bannerman, assistant secretary of defense for procurement.

Dulles Indicates Time Big Factor In Cuba Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — This nation's former intelligence chief indicated Sunday that Fidel Castro's growing military strength set the timetable for last spring's abortive effort to overthrow the Cuban prime minister.

Allen W. Dulles, who retired a few weeks ago as director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, said any move against Communist Castro, short of fullscale U.S. military intervention, had to be made between November 1960 and April 1961.

Appearing on a recorded radio and TV program NBC's "Meet the Press" Dulles said:

"I think the historians of the future will probably say that if any move was to be made to get rid of communism in Cuba, short of actual military intervention with all the power of the United States, that effort would probably have to have been made sometime between, say November and April."

Asked whether the April invasion was the last chance to overthrow Castro without direct U.S. intervention, Dulles replied:

"Well, I wouldn't go quite that far, but I would go well along the line. We knew that the Cuban pilots were being trained in Czechoslovakia. We knew they were going to have very shortly available under Cuban direction MIGs in considerable numbers and I am inclined to think, as I said before, that if a move was to be made short of intervention, probably this was the area of time when it had to be made. About November to April."

Dulles denied that the failure of the invasion was an intelligence failure. "There was no military hardware that appeared that was a surprise to us," he said but conceded that "some of the material was a little better handled than we expected."

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP)—The FBI is aiding Baltimore police in an investigation of a false report of a bomb planted in the Greyhound Bus Depot late Friday night. Police did not find a bomb after searching for nearly an hour.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore man wanted in Virginia on a charge of unlawful flight was being held Saturday pending a hearing before a U. S. commissioner.

Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office of the FBI, said William McDougall Jr. escaped from the Norfolk County Camp of the Virginia State Penitentiary Feb. 24, 1959, while serving part of a 10-year sentence for burglary. The FBI arrested McDougall at his Baltimore home Saturday on a warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid confinement for the crime of burglary.

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The comptroller's office reported this weekend that Maryland's revenue receipts for the first five months of the current fiscal year exceed last year's totals by 14.2 per cent.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said the major revenue sources yielded $200,952,334 — almost $25 million over the July-November period last fiscal year. The greatest increases were noted in collections from the individual income tax, retail sales and use taxes, tobacco tax and federal aid for highways and welfare.

At 11 p.m. Saturday night armored cars under the captain commanding the Tyre garrison in southern Lebanon set out for Beirut. They cut the Tyre-Beirut telephone line.

But reports of the movement reached Col. Antoine Saad, the chief of army intelligence. He rushed to the Defense Ministry and placed all military forces on alert.

While the armored cars were approaching Beirut, heavily armed party plotters converged on the capital. Some went to the radio and post office building in downtown Beirut and some to the houses of the officers. Those at the post office were quickly repulsed.

After arriving at Beirut the armored units first went to Saad's house. Finding him gone, they proceeded to the military academy. Another captain had been held there for several weeks on charges of plotting a coup. By banging against the wall with an armored car the rebels freed the captain and then went to the Defense Ministry.

The plotters charged into the building and seized the ground floor. But loyal officers in the building engaged them in an exchange of gunfire until reinforcements surrounded the building and arrested most of the plotters.

Merger Efforts May Hold Key To Railroads' Future

By GEORGE C. HARLAN
NEW YORK (UPI)—The embattled railroad industry came through 1961 in the worst shape in 15 years. The big question hanging over 1962 is whether crisis-spurred merger efforts are too little and too late to preserve the eastern roads under private control.

The nation's rail carriers cleared between approximately $350 and $400 million in 1961 compared with a return of $445 million in depressed 1960. This is the lowest net income since the industry's profits dropped to $287 million in 1946.

The Association of American Railroads estimated 1961 net income at $390 million or 12 per cent under 1960. The AAR said the industry's rate of return on its investment was 1.97 per cent, the lowest since 1938 and the lowest of any major industry.

The authoritative Railway Age magazine said its best-informed estimates are that 1961 earnings will total not more than $350 million and even this figure is optimistic.

Rail earnings have been improving from the third quarter of 1961 (more from cost-cutting than higher revenues) but not enough to offset the dismal showing of the first half of the year.

The outlook for 1962 is somewhat brighter as the volume of rolling stock is expected to swell to meet the needs of an expanding economy.

However, continued survival of the industry is thought to depend on the speed with which the roads can consolidate to eliminate costly duplication of facilities, find a solution to annual passenger deficits and develop a more favorable federal regulatory climate.

Should resumption of merger talks between the nation's two largest railroads—the Pennsylvania and the New York Central—bear fruit, most rail observers believe the track will be cleared for most if not all pending eastern rail hookups. The Central had been stubbornly fighting unity moves by its competitors in fear of being left in the lurch.

Out of the pattern of eastern lines could emerge three competitive systems formed around the Pennsy and Central, the Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio and the Norfolk & Western. But time is running out for mergers in the East. This is dramatically illustrated by the 1960 Erie-Lackawanna merger. The merged lines lost more in one year of combined operations than the consolidated company expects to realize in five years from unified operations.

Conservative estimates of annual savings from a merger of the Pennsy and Central are $100 million; Atlantic Coast Line-Sea-board Air Line, $38.7 million; Great Northern-Northern Pacific-Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, $43 million; Norfolk and Western-Wabash-Nickel Plate, $27 million and Chesapeake and Ohio-Baltimore and Ohio, $45 million.

However, even after a merger is agreed upon, two more hurdles still must be cleared—The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Justice Department.

Eastern roads, because of their generally precarious financial plight, are expected to have an easier time gaining approval from these two federal agencies. The Western roads, which for the most part are in better economic health, could face rougher sledding.

A case in point is the hotly-disputed bid by two giants—the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe—for control of the small but prospering Western Pacific. The Justice Department opposes the takeover bids of both roads on the ground that control by either line would impair competition.

A development that could bring a break in the clouds in 1962 would be a favorable transportation message to Congress by President Kennedy that could tip the competitive freight-carrying scale more in favor of the railroads than if not all pending eastern rail hookups provided any such message is translated into legislation.

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—What kind of stock market rally can be looked for in 1962?

Will it be a mere technical rebound in the recently depressed issues or will it kindle public enthusiasm into a real revival of the bull market?

These questions were posed Friday by B. K. Thurlow, analyst for the brokerage house, Winslow, Cohn & Stetson, as trading in 1961 came to an end and attention focused on 1962.

He advanced the idea that two negative forces are in evidence which bear watching:

1. Almost every market forecaster is of the opinion that stock prices will rise substantially in coming weeks, a situation that would normally lend itself to a contrary interpretation.

2. Speculators are showing singularly little enthusiasm in the face of all the flowing predictions. If their apathy persists very long into the new year, we will face a situation similar to that in early 1960—"a not too pleasant prospect to contemplate."

"With these two reservations in mind, we feel a little anxious," Thurlow said. "For the next couple of weeks at least we believe the seasonal factors will be strong enough to give us a worthwhile rise.

"In terms of the Dow Jones industrial average, the psychological barrier is around 740, the top of the last eight weeks trading range."

He feels that a recovery in depressed cyclical issues should outweigh expected weakness in defensive type stocks such as utilities, foods and tobacco by enough to produce a new high and a run-up into the 760-770 area.

"If the expected January rally doesn't prove strong enough to restore broad speculative confidence, we may well have a severe reaction," he said.

Merger Efforts May Hold Key To Railroads' Future

By GEORGE C. HARLAN
NEW YORK (UPI)—The embattled railroad industry came through 1961 in the worst shape in 15 years. The big question hanging over 1962 is whether crisis-spurred merger efforts are too little and too late to preserve the eastern roads under private control.

The nation's rail carriers cleared between approximately $350 and $400 million in 1961 compared with a return of $445 million in depressed 1960. This is the lowest net income since the industry's profits dropped to $287 million in 1946.

The Association of American Railroads estimated 1961 net income at $390 million or 12 per cent under 1960. The AAR said the industry's rate of return on its investment was 1.97 per cent, the lowest since 1938 and the lowest of any major industry.

The authoritative Railway Age magazine said its best-informed estimates are that 1961 earnings will total not more than $350 million and even this figure is optimistic.

Rail earnings have been improving from the third quarter of 1961 (more from cost-cutting than higher revenues) but not enough to offset the dismal showing of the first half of the year.

The outlook for 1962 is somewhat brighter as the volume of rolling stock is expected to swell to meet the needs of an expanding economy.

However, continued survival of the industry is thought to depend on the speed with which the roads can consolidate to eliminate costly duplicating facilities, find a solution to annual passenger deficits and develop a more favorable federal regulatory climate.

Should resumption of merger talks between the nation's two largest railroads—the Pennsylvania and the New York Central—bear fruit, most rail observers believe the track will be cleared for most if not all, pending eastern rail hookups. The Central had been stubbornly fighting unity moves by its competitors in fear of being left in the lurch.

Out of the pattern of eastern lines could emerge three competitive systems formed around the Pennsy and Central, the Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio and the Norfolk & Western.

But time is running out for mergers in the East. This is dramatically illustrated by the 1960 Erie-Lackawanna merger. The merged lines lost more in one year of combined operations than the consolidated company expects to realize in five years from unified operations.

Conservative estimates of annual savings from a merger of the Pennsy and Central are $100 million; Atlantic Coast Line-Sea-board Air Line, $38.7 million; Great Northern-Northern Pacific-Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, $43 million; Norfolk and Western-Wabash-Nickel Plate, $27 million and Chesapeake and Ohio-Baltimore and Ohio, $45 million.

However, even after a merger is agreed upon, two more hurdles still must be cleared—The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Justice Department.

Eastern roads, because of their generally precarious financial plight, are expected to have an easier time gaining approval from these two federal agencies. The Western roads, which for the most part are in better economic health, could face rougher sledding.

A case in point is the hotly-disputed bid by two giants—the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe—for control of the small but prospering Western Pacific. The Justice Department opposes the takeover bids of both roads on the ground that control by either line would impair competition.

A development that could bring a break in the clouds in 1962 would be a favorable transportation message to Congress by President Kennedy that could tip the competitive freight-carrying scale more in favor of the railroads provided any such message is translated into legislation.

AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—What kind of stock market rally can be looked for in 1962?

Will it be a mere technical rebound in the recently depressed issues or will it kindle public enthusiasm into a real revival of the bull market?

These questions were posed Friday by B. K. Thurlow, analyst for the brokerage house, Winslow, Cohn & Stetson, as trading in 1961 came to an end and attention focused on 1962.

He advanced the idea that two negative forces are in evidence which bear watching:

1. Almost every market forecaster is of the opinion that stock prices will rise substantially in coming weeks, a situation that would normally lend itself to a contrary interpretation.
2. Speculators are showing singularly little enthusiasm in the face of all the flowing predictions. If their apathy persists very long into the new year, we will face a situation similar to that in early 1960—"a not too pleasant prospect to contemplate."

"In terms of the Dow Jones industrial average, the psychological barrier is around 740, the top of the last eight weeks trading range."

He feels that a recovery in depressed cyclical issues should outweigh expected weakness in defensive type stocks such as utilities, foods and tobaccos by enough to produce a new high and a run-up into the 760-770 area.

"If the expected January rally doesn't prove strong enough to restore broad speculative confidence, we may well have a severe reaction," he said.

Resolve to DO in '62 what you KNOW you can FINISH!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Resolved: Make One Unbreakable Resolution!

So, you're in the mood again to make a lot of changes? With all the talk about New Year resolutions you've been hearing, it's no wonder you're afflicted with that annual attack of ambition.

Nip it in the bud. Right away! Instead, make just ONE resolution for the New Year. AND STICK TO IT!

One well-kept resolution is worth a dozen pie-in-the-sky promises to yourself. Be realistic. Even a superwoman would find it hard to carry out the demands of most women put on themselves.

To help you select that one unbreakable resolution, list ALL the things you would like to be and do in the coming year. Include everything, now — the seemingly insignificant changes as well as the major aims. Even your "silly" notions and your daydreams.

Some of the items on your list may not be as small and as silly as you think. Don't be too harshly self-critical. The real way to judge the worth of your resolutions is to divide them into their separate realms of: 1 — Impossibility, 2 — Probability, and 3 — Possibility.

Choose the change that is within the realm of possibility for you at this particular time. And be sure to allow yourself leeway in case your resolution needs a little revision later on. If you are too specific at the start, your Learn to Ski in '62 may be on the skids before you catch your balance. It's better to promise yourself to Take an Active Part in Some Sport; you may discover you can fulfill it more happily and expertly and conveniently in table tennis or indoor swimming.

Here is just a short sampling of simple changes that I can suggest for you: Lose weight, 5 lbs. at a time. (The first 5 lbs. is the hardest. Any longer number is too frightening and too faraway to face on New Year's Day. The first 5 lbs. is all you need to help you establish the good habits for a proper year-long diet.)

Change hair color. (Again, don't be too definite. Gentlemen may NOT prefer you as a blonde. Just be sure, once you have the right shade and correct procedure, that you KEEP UP your hair coloring routine. It's neglect that will break this resolve.)

Get more sleep each night. (You can say "8 hours," if you wish, but don't state the exact hour for bedtime. Rather, let your common sense guide you each night, according to the next day's schedule.)

Improve speaking voice. (This is one resolve I can assist you in achieving — by offering one of my most popular brochures, "Your Most Attractive Voice," for just 10c. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this paper.)

Whatever you plan — from better posture to a study course at an adult education center — may a happy new YOU have a truly Happy New Year!

Waist Whittlers
By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A big plus in recontouring exercises is a leather strap. It gives you something to work and tug against, like a sparring partner, or gym teacher whose watchful eye keeps you from lapsing into a listless manner of working. Any flexible strap will serve the purpose — fasten two leather belts together and you have a perfect, resistive work out partner.

If you'd like to take two inches off your waist, take your leather strap in hand and run through the following:

1. Plant your feet well astride. Holding the strap with both hands raise your arms wide apart overhead. Pull the strap taut and hold it taut throughout the entire routine. At the same time, pull outward as hard as you can with both hands. Tugging against the strap is the secret of getting results and getting them fast.

Keep erect, twist in the waist as far as possible to the right. Bending down slowly, try to touch your left hand to your right knee. Repeat on the opposite side. Ten times is plenty as a starter, but increase gradually to thirty per day.

2. Sit tailor fashion on the floor. Raise the strap overhead as in the above exercise. Twist and bend to the right and try to touch your left hand to the floor directly in front of your right knee. (Don't expect to succeed on your first try, but with all your might!) Come back to starting position and repeat on the opposite side. Increase from ten to twenty times daily.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a high school sophomore who has never been very popular. I decided this year I was going to make a success of myself. I sent for your booklet "How To Be Well-Liked" and I read it five times. Your system works, but it attracts the wrong kind of people.

The girls I'm dying to have notice me still don't know I'm alive. The dogs stick like glue. I've been getting telephone calls from several pests lately. My mother commented that I'm becoming pretty popular all of a sudden. She doesn't understand that I don't care for any of the girls who call. I think I was better off the other way.

Please write another booklet on "How To Be Well-Liked By The Right Kind of People." Thank you.—FAILURE AT 15

DEAR FAILURE: Please don't bum-rap the booklet. Before you read it you weren't attracting ANYBODY. Now at least you're getting some attention, even though it's not from the girls you want.

Just keep at it, Boy, and memorize the last paragraph on page one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is five years old and his father has yet to call him by his given name. He wanted to name the child after his father and I hated that name so I named him after my father instead. My husband has been mad at me ever since, and he takes it out on the boy.

It hurts me to see him ignore his own son. We have a younger daughter and he fusses over her constantly. I'm sure the boy feels left out. I'm afraid if my husband doesn't warm up soon they will never have a decent father-son relationship.

What can I do?—B. WILDERED

DEAR B.: You manufactured a good share of your trouble by running rough-shod over your husband's wishes. Now you must make the best of the situation by trying to persuade your husband that a child needs love and affection from both parents. When he fails to get it the results can be devastating.

If your husband cannot warm up to the boy suggest professional help.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's brother is driving me buggy. He is unmarried and makes this his second home. When he first moved to this city he didn't have a job. He lived with us for 13 weeks. I fed him, did his laundry, picked up after him and even kept my mouth shut when he accidentally set fire to the couch with his cigarette. It was only after I went out and found him a job that he went to work.

Now he rents a room eight blocks from us. He eats dinner here every night and then beats us to the TV set so he can get the channel he wants.

Last night he handed me his clothes and said, "Would you mind tossing this in the machine—the laundry was closed when I got over there."

My husband says I should be happy he feels so at home. Should I?—FRAZZLE

Dear Frazzle: Happy, my eye. What kind of a marriage is it that allows a third party to hang around constantly?

I suggest you introduce this

My husband says I should be happy he feels so at home.

Should I?—FRAZZLE

DEAR FRAZZLE: Happy, my eye. What kind of a marriage is it that allows a third party to hang around constantly? I suggest you introduce this leech to a few girls you don't care much about.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a Chicago widow, 48, with a son in the service. I have a nice little home and I work to support myself.

Two months ago I met a man who impressed me with his gentleness, his lovable personality and interesting mind. Ed is 50 years old, and a salesman.

This man has been very attentive and I haven't been so happy since my husband passed away. I could not understand why a man so wonderful as Ed never married. Last night he told me.

When he was very young (22) he got mixed up with a mob. He was caught in a hold-up and a policeman was shot. The man who did the shooting got the chair and Ed served 16 years. He was paroled in 1949.

My family would die if they knew this. Should I stop seeing him? I become fonder of him on every date.

—ACCUSTOMED TO HIS FACE

DEAR ACCUSTOMED: This man was honest enough to give you the details of his background (voluntarily) which speaks well for him.

Continue to see him and view his character and personality under a variety of circumstances. Introduce him to your family and give them an opportunity to know him. If the relationship continues to flower and bloom tell your family about his past. You two conceivably could have a good life together.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Albania, a center of controversy in the Communist bloc, has a population of 1,581,000 living in an area a little larger than Maryland. According to legend, Albanians are descended from an eagle. Hence the Albanian flag shows a two-headed eagle on a solid red field.

Marching Forward Once Again

As the old year dies faith and hope for the new are born. In the long ago our ancestors rang merry changes on the church bells which caught up in familiar and well-loved sounds the emotions that were at the very core of their being.

If in these less simple times the dominant note is more secular at midnight the optimism and memories that are inseparable from the occasion remain much as they have always been.

Hope is an essential part of living. It is the sum of the best that we expect from all our tomorrows. Without it the landscape of the future is a dreary wasteland in which all action ends in sterility and life itself perishes. This, mankind has never been able to accept and has always made hope the springboard of action in defiance of gloomy philosophers.

And if this instinct springs perpetually from the center of man's being in apparent defiance of logic, experience and the forebodings of old and tired poets, is it not one of the wonders of creation? But without action—the will to perform deeds—hope remains frail, negative and without protest.

"Man," said an English doctor the other day, "still prefers to die on his feet, rather than live on his knees." He will never be completely crushed under the weight of circumstance and if knocked down will get back on his feet and return to the fray.

And so, as we pass into the new year, we respond anew to the revitalizing touch of hope and the belief that with action we can make our tomorrows better than our yesterdays.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Doesn't Matter Much

The newspapers stir one's fears and excitement, but it does not matter much. Christmas comes and New Year's Day comes; a year passes and a new year sets in its course. We check off our cards and count our presents and pray that we have forgotten no one. The excitement for a day or two is tense; but we awake on the aftermath and we go back to work and it is all the same.

In the affairs of men, the calendar does not change the course of events. Khrushchev will be in 1962 what he was in 1961—coarse, rough, pushing, grabbing, orating character and avoiding war as the rest of the world really seeks to avoid war if there is any chance to gain victories without war.

The world has grown weary of Khrushchev's tactics and he knows that they do not reach his goals. For what he has sought to achieve during 1961 has been the abolition of the United Nations which has somehow survived despite him. He has sought to disrupt the Western Alliance which has managed to survive despite him. He has attempted to build a Communist center in Cuba that would master the Western Hemisphere and leave the United States isolated and he has failed in this program thus far.

Our program has not been completely or competently carried forward, but neither has Khrushchev's. And that is interesting because somehow we have permitted ourselves to believe that Russia's program is inevitably successful, when, as a matter of fact, it does not really approximate success.

The public looks at the confusion of purpose and the confusion of statement and wonders what it is all about and how it comes about that what is said is not done and what is done is so different from what has been promised. But these are incidental to efforts at free government and it is not too difficult to understand that freedom and efficiency do not often go together. The most final and efficient action is death which is the means that dictators and masters use to complete their purposes.

In a free society, there must be a margin for error. That does not mean that we must accept inefficiency or justify confusion, but it does mean that we are often faced by a choice between arbitrary decisions and a variety of choices. Even in dictatorial societies, the prevailing element often has to compromise with other groups, because power cannot be too tightly held or too rigidly exercised without the risk of explosion.

And so, we have gone through this year 1961 without much peace or rest but also without any decisive failures. One might say that everything remains up in the air. The United Nations continues to exist but no one can say whether it is stronger or weaker. Certainly one wonders what will become of it. The death of Dag Hammarskjöld frightened many of its strongest adherents but none of them could explain why Hammarskjöld's departure was a greater loss than that of his predecessor, Trygve Lie, although it might be said that few remember Lie.

The change of the Presidency of the United States did not really affect too much. President Eisenhower was a calm and gentle person who provided the country with a gentle personality but whose eight years in office will leave small mark upon history. He let things pass and for good or ill, they did pass on their way hardly scratching the sands of time. The contest between Vice President Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy for President excited small interest despite a television debate which stimulated interest but ended in a peaceful exercise in apologetics.

The Republican Party came out of the fray surprisingly weakened although it actually received a sizable vote. In fact, political parties seem to have lost their sway and in their place, mass movements are developing which may be stronger than the political parties. The various conservative groups display a large popular response although they do not yet produce a political program that is notable. Their political leadership is demonstrated by Senator Barry Goldwater, but their weakness is the attachment of extremist elements. No conclusion can be reached until those who lead these groups can decide where they are going to.

And so we come to 1962—a year of doubt and uncertainty and even fear.

Nehru Wins Unmoral 'Man Of Year' Distinction

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Nehru is puzzled — he still professes not to understand why Premier Khrushchev applauds him for his grab of Goa while the United States and Great Britain denounce what he did. Yet he tells a press conference in New Delhi:

"Nothing in the 14 years of independence has excited and thrilled the people in India as the liberation of Goa. There is no doubt in my mind of the full justification for use of force against Portugal."

But the Indian leader admits that he doesn't like the fact that most of the Afro-Asian nations "rejoice" while many Western nations are critical of the Indian conquest of Goa. He added: "I don't like this division of opinion between white and black."

But the Indian Prime Minister shouldn't be surprised. He may go on wondering about world reaction, but he doesn't explain why he himself "rejoices" that his policy has had the warm approval of Nikita Khrushchev. For the Indian leader telegraphed the Soviet Premier as follows:

"The government of India is glad to note that the Soviet government has understood the motives and ideas determining our actions and is deeply moved by its sympathy and support."

The Soviet Premier is the leading exponent of the doctrine that might makes right and has been telling the world that agreements about Allied rights in Berlin are obsolete even though signed only a decade and a half ago. It is precisely this doctrine — that history can be changed at will and past understandings can be arbitrarily erased — which is basic in Communist philosophy.

Indeed, the same attitude was characterized of the Nazi Era in Europe as Adolf Hitler cried out that the Sudetenland was German and that Austria was German and that both areas must therefore be included in the Nazi Empire.

It seems strange to be equating a mild-mannered man like Nehru with the fanatical Hitler, but the reasoning each offered in defense of the conquest of neighboring territory happens to be almost identical. The Indian government argues its right to annex what is next door. This misguided doctrine has brought on many a conflict in world history. The idea that a powerful government may annex neighboring territory by force of arms is old-fashioned and obsolete. Today the free world extols the principle of the right of peoples to determine their own destiny.

It would not, for example, have caused a ripple in the stream of world happenings if the people of Goa had decided, by vote in a plebiscite, to set up their own government or to join India. But for the government of India, which has inveighed against imperialism a long time, suddenly

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

President Kennedy is seriously considering the reply he should give in the event that Nikita Khrushchev invites him to visit Russia this summer.

Although no such invitation has been tendered, and so far as can be learned is not even in the works at this time, there are growing signs that Khrushchev may make the gesture.

Khrushchev has softened his stand on Berlin considerably since his first blustering announcement last spring. But he still needs a good reason for getting off the diplomatic limb he climbed out on, and speculation in Washington is that the invitation to Kennedy may be the "out."

According to students of Kremlin reasoning, if Kennedy should be invited—and accepted—Khrushchev will have a perfectly valid reason, for telling his own people, the East Germans, and his other allies that he will postpone any decision on Berlin pending his meeting with the American President.

To some observers in Washington, this strategy was behind the Russian decision to obtain and promise to print fully an exclusive interview with Kennedy by a Soviet journalist.

Kennedy's reaction to publication of his views in Moscow would lead on to the conclusion that he would accept such an invitation. He well may. However, Kennedy must consider the position of the Western Allies, the effect of his visit on neutral leaders around the world and the American "image" in Africa.

In some of these areas, Soviet propaganda could make much of the visit by holding it up as proof that things aren't really so strained between East and West, and that siding with the Soviet bloc will not bring penalties from the West.

Even with these considerations, however, the odds are that if Kennedy is invited to Russia, he will accept on grounds that communicating with the Russian people is worth the risk of some losses elsewhere.

Americans Frustrated, Worried About Future As New Year Begins

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Having traveled rather widely around the USA during recent months, I think I can report that the year 1962 opens with a greater number of Americans frustrated and worried about the future than ever before.

This frustration is one reason for the drop-the-bomb-now sentiment which pervades right-wing extremists. This sixth column seems convinced that American democracy and enlightened capitalism can't compete with Communism and the only solution is preventive war.

These frustrated Americans who believe in the solution of war should take a look at history—both past and current.

Regarding past history, on the eve of the Spanish-American War, they might note that President McKinley kept on his desk an offer from the Spanish government to give us Cuba in order to prevent war. McKinley suppressed the offer because of the popular clamor for war. Instead, he bowed to that clamor, went to war, and now our troubles with Cuba are back with us all over again. Only this time the clamor is for us, not Spain, to invade Cuba.

If we had accepted the Spanish proposal, war not only would have been prevented but Cuba might now be the 51st state.

Look At The Record
Regarding current history, our frustrated fellow citizens who lack confidence in American democracy should objectively call the roll of American achievements and American defeats. Here is part of the roll call:

Western Europe, which 15 years ago teetered on the brink of Communism, is now a prosperous, semi-solidified anti-Communist area — thanks largely to the man whom the sixth column bitterly attacks, Gen. George Marshall, originator of the Marshall Plan. Japan and West Germany, once our enemies, have been rebuilt by the United States in one of the most generous gestures ever made by the victor to the vanquished. They are now starting to repay the United States for part of this cost.

Egypt, a nation which five years ago was receiving all sorts of arms and Aswan Dam money from the Kremlin, is now so aloof from the Kremlin that the Moscow press excoriates it.

Israel, a country which President Truman was the first to recognize and which American helped to build up, is an oasis of democracy in the Middle East.

Iran, which has been troubled by the great chasm between the wealthy few and the many poor, has just witnessed a revolutionary redistribution of land move by the Shah. He has redistributed approximately 3,000,000 acres of his land and forced other big landowners to do the same—a social reform to stave off Communism.

In Africa, every new independent republic lined up with the USA against the Soviet when it came to opposing Moscow's troika plan for stifling the United Nations. And though we're having trouble in Ghana and Morocco, we have firm friends in most of the other countries. In Guinea, where 1,200 Communist advisers have been working, President Sekou Toure has recently turned vigorously toward the West.

We Still Lead

In Asia the picture is mixed. We will have trouble in Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam for a long time to come. You cannot undo the effects of French colonialism overnight. But the Philippines have just proved themselves a bastion of democracy by undergoing a national election, and in other areas we are holding our own.

In Latin America, the picture is also mixed. There are pockets of Communism and anti-Americanism. But 14 nations have broken relations with Castro, and on the whole things are taking a turn for the better.

In brief, we are by no means losing the cold war. In the competition between capitalism and Communism, we are ahead. We are not ahead by a decisive margin, but we are ahead. The competition in the days to come is not going to be easy. But neither was the road followed by those who landed in this country 300 years ago easy: nor the road of those who dared pit the future of 13 struggling colonies against the biggest empire in the world: nor those who dared push west to build up the nation.

None of it was easy. There were no easy solutions then and there is none today. Frustrated nonbelievers in the future of America will have to look elsewhere for easy solutions. But to anyone who has traveled through part of Russia, part of Europe, and part of Latin America in the past six months, as I have, I suggest to the sixth column cohorts that they also travel and then come back and be glad they have this country to live in.

Behind The Scenes

President De Gaulle of France got on the Trans-Atlantic telephone the other day and told President Kennedy bluntly that he doesn't like American Ambassador James Gavin, a retired general. Prime Minister Macmillan also told Kennedy at Bermuda that he didn't like the militant attitude of Gen. Lauris Norstad, Commander of NATO. To please these two important allies, Kennedy will transform both Gavin and Norstad. . . . Congressman Charles Halleck of Indiana and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona claim that the colleges and universities are going conservative. But on Feb. 6 more than 3,000 students from all over the USA will invade the nation's capital to protest against the world arms race and against nuclear-bomb testing.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Winter has come and the town is quiet. The tawny sands across the street are smooth except for the triangular footprints of the gulls, who walk the beaches at dawn for gifts from the tide. The thunder of the surf is in slow rhythm. The spume flies off the stone jetties like white plumes and the green breakers roll up on the sand, stand still, and recede, erasing the footprints of the birds.

The river behind the house flows as swiftly as it did in summer. It is empty and a cold sun tips the eddies and whirls with brass coins which spin and die. The boats in the yards sit high on wooden cradles and their gay summertime names seem embarrassing in winter. Up and down the oceanfront, the big houses are boarded up, the windows are blind.

A thin layer of white veils the southern sky and an unseen jet draws a slow shaky crayon line below it. At night, the hoarse wooden quack of wild ducks comes from the marshes on the far side of the river. Now and then, a flurry of small fish clears the surface like a handful of silver confetti as they run from the big fish.

It is a time of quiet in Sea Bright, N. J. The summer is a good time, but the winter is a good time too. Night comes early and sleeps until mid-morning. The sun comes over the sea, hazy and lazy, too tired to show a bright face to the fat tankers on the southern track. The bare branches of the trees against the sky give the landscape a butch haircut.

There is a little ice rime around the dock, but the real ice hasn't come yet. In a week or so, it will begin to break off in the fresh water creeks upriver and the white chunks will sail down to the sea on a three-knot tide and come back up six hours later when the swing is in. The sea gulls will stand on these little white islands, blinking their eyes against the dazzling sun and crying for food.

It is easy to tell, from indoors, which way the wind is moving because the gulls do not like to have their tail feathers ruffled. They face into the wind, permitting it to run along their curved orange beaks, past their heads, smoothing and pressing the wing feathers against their sides.

Some stand on the sea wall, watching the winter fisherman, in waist-deep boots, stand in the surf and cast for big strippers. This is their competition and they do not like it. The small terns sit on a floating log, rising and falling in the sea like a line of chorus girls learning to kick in unison.

Sometimes, in early evening, a thick fog rolls in and the village sounds like a community muffled in snow. A saloon door slams, a child giggles, a car walks through it in low gear. The green lights in front of Borough Hall turn the fog to jade for 15 feet, and then surrender to darkness.

At 10 p. m. one can walk the sea wall from the Driftwood to Mar-Co-Ed, over four miles, without seeing anyone. The deep quiet lays over the village like a secret.

Here and there, a smudge of smoke lifts from a chimney to challenge the moonlight. These are the hardy ones — the Ryans, the Farrells, the Rocks, the Axelssens, the Santoras, the Keenans, the Furmans and the Thompsons — to whom the ceaseless sea is home.

Once, a long time ago, this was a finger of sand 10 miles long. The Lenapes and the Delawares carried their canoes overland and set them in the creeks and they came downstream to this big sandbar and called it Nauvoo, which means Bright Sea. They fished the waters in the warm season and their fires burned high at night on the beaches.

The tides and winds were as steady then as they are now. Arcturus came up on time, blinking a baleful yellow eye, and Sirius followed the dogs at a distance, as a good hunter should. The Indians chased the sporting porpoise and fought the fat blue-fish and the gallant bonita.

That was yesterday. A lone-some long ago yesterday. The White man is here now. He builds big stone walls to keep the sea out, and bulkheads to keep the river from his back door. He pollutes the river and the sea and complains about the fishing. He is a fretful, worrisome animal who has no time to stare for a moment at a slice of sky. He is very busy protecting what he has, and trying to get more.

It is evening again. The seersucker river smooths flat; the west wind dies. A wedge of peach rims the western sky. Overhead, a herringbone cloud loses the sun and assumes a coat of slate blue. It will be cold and clear tonight and the lamps overhead will wink big and blue.

The town is quiet . . .

Resolve To Remain Strong And Optimistic

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The cold war is an anxiety producer but we must resolve to remain strong and back up our convictions. Prosperity is desirable but it tends to corrode man's mind. Let us not forget we can lose our tangible assets overnight but not our integrity, religion, honor, loyalty, or courage.

This year we must face more fallout, war talk, and nuclear explosions. I have resolved to take a more optimistic attitude and help others maintain their courage and integrity so they will remain strong. This is the only way to avoid the internal decay that could prove more disastrous than atomic bombs.

My optimistic attitude of fallout in its true perspective. Every new invention and appliance has its inherent risks and the potential hazards of fallout cannot be underestimated. Many persons are scaring us by projecting calculations of the destructive potentials of radioactive dust in our soil, food, and body. There is no doubt that the number of deaths from leukemia and bone cancer will increase.

One authority asserts that if the average level of fallout is 10 strontium units over the next 30 years, there may be 1,200 to 3,600 more cases of leukemia in the United States and perhaps 20,000 in the world during the same period. Let us assume that the authority is incorrect and the number of cases will be 18,000 instead of 3,600 during the next 30 years. It is here that the hazard must be considered in its true perspective.

The automobile also is a fairly modern invention but only a handful of persons are concerned about its lethal properties. Motor mishaps kill approximately 33,000 persons annually, cripple 10 times more, and injure 100 times this number. In three decades the death toll reaches 990,000.

One of the best nuclear scientists also said that smoking is a greater cancer threat than fallout. Another point is that those worried about the genetic defects brought on by fallout may find some encouragement in this consideration: Changed genes might possibly improve the human race.

Casey Stengel, ex-Yankee pilot, now warming up for a probably more exasperating chore of managing the new Mets, remembers the year the then Brooklyn Dodgers brought up a young left-hander who had a world of stuff, but less control than is generally expected even from southpaws. "Just how wild was he?" I asked Casey. "How wild?" echoed Casey. "Well, one evening they sent him out to pitch batting practice at Ebbets Field, and he hit a man in the eye who was watching TV in a bar on Times Square!"

"Don't underestimate my Mets," adds Stengel. "It's the first time I'll be managing a team as old as I am!"

History is being made at such a breakneck pace these days that even Harvard's erudite David McCord seems a bit befuddled. Muses McCord:

"Nothing in the 14 years of independence has excited and thrilled the people in India as the liberation of Goa. There is no doubt in my mind of the full justification for use of force against Portugal."

But the Indian leader admits that he doesn't like the fact that most of the Afro-Asian nations "rejoice" while many Western nations are critical of the Indian conquest of Goa. He added: "I don't like this division of opinion between white and black."

But the Indian Prime Minister shouldn't be surprised. He may go on wondering about world reaction, but he doesn't explain why he himself "rejoices" that his policy has had the warm approval of Nikita Khrushchev. For the Indian leader telegraphed the Soviet Premier as follows:

"The government of India is glad to note that the Soviet government has understood the motives and ideas determining our actions and is deeply moved by its sympathy and support."

The Soviet Premier is the leading exponent of the doctrine that might makes right and has been telling the world that agreements about Allied rights in Berlin are obsolete even though signed only a decade and a half ago. It is precisely this doctrine — that history can be changed at will and past understandings can be arbitrarily erased — which is basic in Communist philosophy.

Indeed, the same attitude was characterized of the Nazi Era in Europe as Adolf Hitler cried out that the Sudetenland was German and that Austria was German and that both areas must therefore be included in the Nazi Empire.

It seems strange to be equating a mild-mannered man like Nehru with the fanatical Hitler, but the reasoning each offered in defense of the conquest of neighboring territory happens to be almost identical. The Indian government argues its right to annex what is next door. This misguided doctrine has brought on many a conflict in world history. The idea that a powerful government may annex neighboring territory by force of arms is old-fashioned and obsolete. Today the free world extols the principle of the right of peoples to determine their own destiny.

It would not, for example, have caused a ripple in the stream of world happenings if the people of Goa had decided, by vote in a plebiscite, to set up their own government or to join India. But for the government of India, which has inveighed against imperialism a long time, suddenly to use the tactics of the imperialists is a shock to the peoples of the world who in recent years have been sympathizing with the efforts of colonies to break away from their rulers.

It is reassuring to find that the government of the United States didn't keep aloof from what was about to happen in Goa. American Ambassador Galbraith at New Delhi pleaded with the Indian government to agree to a six-month moratorium rather than permit an invasion.

Prime Minister Nehru, however, said it was almost physically impossible to reverse the process and argued that the invasion had been twice postponed already. The fact is that this conversation with the Ambassador took place on the evening of December 17, and yet at midnight of the same day the Prime Minister himself ordered the invasion of Goa. It hasn't been explained why he couldn't have held up that final order if he had really wished to postpone the whole action.

But the Indian Prime Minister evidently wanted in advance a complete submission by Portugal as the price even of an informal negotiation with that country. This is reminiscent of what some dictators have usually demanded. Great Britain tried desperately to avert World War II by urging Hitler to wait while parleys over Poland could be held, but the Nazi dictator said he couldn't wait and ordered the attack anyway.

It seems tragic that with all the machinery of mediation being utilized from time to time — as, for instance, in the Congo by the U.N. — no means was found by other nations to save India from the stigma of aggression, and particularly to save Prime Minister Nehru from the doubtful distinction now being accorded him as the unmoral "man of the year."

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

President Kennedy is seriously considering the reply he should give in the event that Nikita Khrushchev invites him to visit Russia this summer.

Although no such invitation has been tendered, and so far as can be learned is not even in the works at this time, there are growing signs that Khrushchev may make the gesture.

Khrushchev has softened his stand on Berlin considerably since his first blustering announcement last spring. But he still needs a good reason for getting off the diplomatic limb he climbed out on, and speculation in Washington is that the invitation to Kennedy may be the "out."

According to students of Kremlin reasoning, if Kennedy should be invited—and accepts—Khrushchev will have a perfectly valid reason, for telling his own people, the East Germans, and his other allies that he will postpone any decision on Berlin pending his meeting with the American President.

To some observers in Washington, this strategy was behind the Russian decision to obtain and promise to print fully an exclusive interview with Kennedy by a Soviet journalist.

Kennedy's reaction to publication of his views in Moscow would lead on to the conclusion that he would accept such an invitation. He well may. However, Kennedy must consider the position of the Western Allies, the effect of his visit on neutral leaders around the world and the American "image" in Africa.

In some of these areas, Soviet propaganda could make much of the visit by holding it up as proof that things aren't really so strained between East and West, and that siding with the Soviet bloc will not bring penalties from the West.

Even with these considerations, however, the odds are that if Kennedy is invited to Russia, he will accept on grounds that communicating with the Russian people is worth the risk of some losses elsewhere.

Resolve To Remain Strong And Optimistic

By Dr. Thendore R. Van Dellen

The cold war is an anxiety producer but we must resolve to remain strong and back up our convictions. Prosperity is desirable but it tends to corrode man's mind. Let us not forget we can lose our tangible assets overnight but not our integrity, religion, honor, loyalty, or courage.

This year we must face more fallout, war talk, and nuclear explosions. I have resolved to take a more optimistic attitude and help others maintain their courage and integrity so they will remain strong. This is the only way to avoid the internal decay that could prove more disastrous than atomic bombs.

My optimistic attitude of fallout in its true perspective. Every new invention and appliance has its inherent risks and the potential hazards of fallout cannot be underestimated. Many persons are scaring us by projecting calculations as to the destructive potentials of radioactive dust in our soil, food, and body. There is no doubt that the number of deaths from leukemia and bone cancer will increase.

One authority asserts that if the average level of fallout is 10 strontium units over the next 30 years, there may be 1,200 to 3,600 more cases of leukemia in the United States and perhaps 20,000 in the world during the same period. Let us assume that the authority is incorrect and the number of cases will be 18,000 instead of 3,600 during the next 30 years. It is here that the hazard must be considered in its true perspective.

The automobile also is a fairly modern invention but only a handful of persons are concerned about its lethal properties. Motor mishaps kill approximately 33,000 persons annually, cripple 10 times more, and injure 100 times this number. In three decades the death toll reaches 990,000.

One of the best nuclear scientists also said that smoking is a greater cancer threat than fallout. Another point is that those worried about the genetic defects brought on by fallout may find some encouragement in this consideration: Changed genes might possibly improve the human race.

ARM EXERCISE

R. R. writes: I read your item about the benefits of the rocking chair. Will flabby upper arm muscles be helped too? If so, what is the best position to assume in the rocker?

REPLY

Upright, holding the arms of the chair with the hands. It is exercise, provided you use your arms to help rock the chair.

BAD HIP

B. H. writes: A 61 year old man has a deteriorated hip socket that causes trouble in walking. His left leg is getting shorter all the time. Can a new hip joint be put in?

REPLY

Yes, but he needs more expert advice than I can give him in this column.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Casey Stengel, ex-Yankee pilot, now warming up for a probably more exasperating chore of managing the new Mets, remembers the year the then Brooklyn Dodgers brought up a young left-hander who had a world of stuff, but less control than is generally expected even from southpaws. "Just how wild was he?" I asked Casey. "How wild?" echoed Casey. "Well, one evening they sent him out to pitch batting practice at Ebbets Field, and he hit a man in the eye who was watching TV in a bar on Times Square!"

"Don't underestimate my Mets," adds Stengel. "It's the first time I'll be managing a team as old as I am!"

History is being made at such a breakneck pace these days that even Harvard's erudite David McCord seems a bit befuddled. Muses McCord:

There once was a man in the moon,
But he got there a little too soon.
Some others came later
And fell down a crater.
When was it—next August? Last June?

Americans Frustrated, Worried About Future As New Year Begins

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Having traveled rather widely around the USA during recent months, I think I can report that the year 1962 opens with a greater number of Americans frustrated and worried about the future than ever before.

This frustration is one reason for the drop-the-bomb-now sentiment which pervades right-wing extremists. This sixth column seems convinced that American democracy and enlightened capitalism can't compete with Communism and the only solution is preventive war.

These frustrated Americans who believe in the solution of war should take a look at history—both past and current.

Regarding past history, on the eve of the Spanish-American War, they might note that President McKinley kept on his desk an offer from the Spanish government to give us Cuba in order to prevent war. McKinley suppressed the offer because of the popular clamor for war. Instead, he bowed to that clamor, went to war, and now our troubles with Cuba are back with us all over again. Only this time the clamor is for us, not Spain, to invade Cuba.

If we had accepted the Spanish proposal, war not only would have been prevented but Cuba might now be the 51st state.

Look At The Record

Regarding current history, our

frustrated fellow citizens who lack confidence in American democracy should objectively call the roll of American achievements and American defeats. Here is part of the roll call:

Western Europe, which 15 years ago teetered on the brink of Communism, is now a prosperous, semi-solidified anti-Communist area — thanks largely to the man whom the sixth column bitterly attacks, Gen. George Marshall, originator of the Marshall Plan. Japan and West Germany, once our enemies, have been rebuilt by the United States in one of the most generous gestures ever made by the victor to the vanquished. They are now starting to repay the United States for part of this cost.

Egypt, a nation which five years ago was receiving all sorts of arms and Aswan Dam money from the Kremlin, is now so aloof from the Kremlin that the Moscow press excoriates it.

Israel, a country which President Truman was the first to recognize and which American helped to build up, is an oasis of democracy in the Middle East.

Iran, which has been troubled by the great chasm between the wealthy few and the many poor, has just witnessed a revolutionary redistribution of land move by the Shah. He has redistributed approximately 3,000,000 acres of his land and forced other big landowners to do the same—a social reform to stave off Communism.

In Africa, every new independent republic lined up with the USA against the Soviet when it came to opposing Moscow's troika plan for stifling the United Nations. And though we're having trouble in Ghana and Morocco, we have firm friends in most of the other countries. In Guinea, where 1,200 Communist advisers have been working, President Sekou Toure has recently turned vigorously toward the West.

We Still Lead

In Asia the picture is mixed. We will have trouble in Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam for a long time to come. You cannot undo the effects of French colonialism overnight. But the Philippines have just proved themselves a bastion of democracy by undergoing a national election, and in other areas we are holding our own.

In Latin America, the picture is also mixed. There are pockets of Communism and anti-Americanism. But 14 nations have broken relations with Castro, and on the whole things are taking a turn for the better.

In brief, we are by no means losing the cold war. In the competition between capitalism and Communism, we are ahead. We are not ahead by a decisive margin, but we are ahead. The competition in the days to come is not going to be easy. But neither was the road followed by those who landed in this country 300 years ago easy; nor the road of those who dared pit the future of 13 struggling colonies against the biggest empire in the world; nor those who dared push west to build up the nation.

None of it was easy. There were no easy solutions then and there is none today. Frustrated nonbelievers in the future of America will have to look elsewhere for easy solutions. But to anyone who has traveled through part of Russia, part of Europe, and part of Latin America in the past six months, as I have, I suggest to the sixth column cohorts that they also travel and then come back and be glad they have this country to live in.

Behind The Scenes

President De Gaulle of France got on the Trans-Atlantic telephone the other day and told President Kennedy bluntly that he doesn't like American Ambassador James Gavin, a retired general. Prime Minister Macmillan also told Kennedy at Bermuda that he didn't like the militant attitude of Gen. Lauris Norstad, Commander of NATO. To please these two important allies, Kennedy will transform both Gavin and Norstad.

Congressman Charles Halleck of Indiana and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona claim that the colleges and universities are going conservative. But on Feb. 6 more than 3,000 students from all over the USA will invade the nation's capital to protest against the world arms race and against nuclear-bomb testing.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Winter has come and the town is quiet. The tawny sands across the street are smooth except for the triangular footprints of the gulls, who walk the beaches at dawn for gifts from the tide. The thunder of the surf is in slow rhythm. The spume flies off the stone jetties like white plums and the green breakers roll up on the sand, stand still, and recede, erasing the footprints of the birds.

The river behind the house flows as swiftly as it did in summer. It is empty and a cold sun tips the eddies and whirls with brass coins which spin and die. The boats in the yards sit high on wooden cradles and their gay summertime names seem embarrassing in winter. Up and down the oceanfront, the big houses are boarded up, the windows are blind.

A thin layer of white veils the southern sky and an unseen jet draws a slow shaky crayon line below it. At night, the hoarse wooden quack of wild ducks comes from the marshes on the far side of the river. Now and then, a flurry of small fish clears the surface like a handful of silver confetti as they run from the big fish.

It is a time of quiet in Sea Bright, N. J. The summer is a good time, but the winter is a good time too. Night comes early and sleeps until mid-morning. The sun comes over the sea, hazy and lazy, too tired to show a bright face to the fat tankers on the southern track. The bare branches of the trees against the sky give the landscape a butch haircut.

There is a little ice rime around the dock, but the real ice hasn't come yet. In a week or so, it will begin to break off in the fresh water creeks upriver and the white chunks will sail down to the sea on a three-knot tide and come back up six hours later when the swing is in. The sea gulls will stand on these little white islands, blinking their eyes against the dazzling sun and crying for food.

It is easy to tell, from indoors, which way the wind is moving because the gulls do not like to have their tail feathers ruffled. They face into the wind, permitting it to run along their curved orange beaks, past their heads, smoothing and pressing the wing feathers against their sides.

Some stand on the sea wall, watching the winter fisherman, in waist-deep boots, stand in the surf and cast for big strippers. This is their competition and they do not like it. The small terns sit on a floating log, rising and falling in the sea like a line of chorus girls learning to kick in unison.

Sometimes, in early evening, a thick fog rolls in and the village sounds like a community muffled in snow. A saloon door slams, a child giggles, a car walks through it in low gear. The green lights in front of Borough Hall turn the fog to jade for 15 feet, and then surrender to darkness.

At 10 p. m. one can walk the sea wall from the Driftwood to Mar-Co-Ed, over four miles, without seeing anyone. The deep quiet lays over the village like a secret. Here and there, a smudge of smoke lifts from a chimney to challenge the moonlight. These are the hardy ones — the Ryans, the Farrells, the Rocks, the Axelssens, the Santoras, the Keenans, the Furmans and Thompsons — to whom the ceaseless sea is home.

Once, a long time ago, this was a finger of sand 10 miles long. The Lenapes and the Delawares carried their canoes overland and set them in the creeks and they came downstream to this big sandbar and called it Nauvoo, which means Bright Sea. They fished the waters in the warm season and their fires burned high at night on the beaches.

The tides and winds were as steady then as they are now. Arcturus came up on time, blinking a baleful yellow eye, and Sirius followed the dogs at a distance, as a good hunter should. The Indians chased the sporting porpoise and fought the fat blue-fish and the gillnet bonita.

That was yesterday. A lone-some long ago yesterday. The White man is here now. He builds big stone walls to keep the sea out, and bulkheads to keep the river from his back door. He pollutes the river and the sea and complains about the fishing. He is a fretful, worrisome animal who has no time to stare for a moment at a slice of sky. He is very busy protecting what he has, and trying to get more.

It is evening again. The seersucker river smooths flat; the west wind dies. A wedge of peach rims the western sky. Overhead, a herringbone cloud loses the sun and assumes a coat of slate blue. It will be cold and clear tonight and the lamps overhead will wink big and blue.

The town is quiet . . .

You're Telling Me

Police in Dusseldorf, Germany, nabbed a gang of six thieves together with the loot, just 32 minutes after they had robbed a jewelry store of a million dollars worth of gems. Crime doesn't pay—not for long, anyway.

tricity produced in 1962 will exceed the total of any previous year. This is favorable to utility preferreds.

27. Steel production in 1962 will exceed this year's 100 million tons, but the increase will come from producing steel in colors.

28. Cement production will be about the same in 1962 as in 1961, but the industry's capacity to produce is increasing too rapidly in view of the demand. The cement manufacturers must give more attention to colors.

29. Expenditures for plant and equipment in 1962 will increase, supplemented by large appropriations for repainting factories and offices in many colors.

30. Newsprint production depends upon the number of newspapers and the amount of advertising sold. I forecast a decline in the amount of newsprint sold during 1962, but advertising receipts may increase through the better use of colors. This may result in the increased use of coated paper to better take color printing—with a 50% increase in advertising rates.

31. Furniture manufacturers are marking up prices so that young couples will buy furniture in the raw and paint same themselves.

32. There will be some increase in color TV sales in 1962. In fact, I think the present TV market is far from being saturated.

33. First-class postage rates will not be increased during 1962. Hence, more money will be spent on direct mail selling. This should help job printers in 1962, as their present margin of profit is very small. Billboard advertising will increase during 1962, due to a new kind of paint.

34. Lumber will do well to hold its own in 1962 and much of it will be sold colored. Wall-to-wall carpeting will become even more popular, reducing the price of the best hardwood floors.

35. Fewer "scatter rugs" will be sold in 1962. Rug dealers must go to brighter colors, even for "orientals".

36. One of the greatest developments during 1962 will be the increased use of color in homes, offices, stores, and factories. This should increase both the demand for and the price of good paint.

37. Exports will probably increase during 1962, but the surplus of trade in favor of the United States is constantly decreasing.

38. President Kennedy is encouraged by the recent elections in New York, New Jersey and Texas. This Democratic trend will continue during 1962, notwithstanding former President Eisenhower's campaign speeches.

39. President Kennedy will be more favorable to "big business" in 1962 ONLY when he is able to use big business to increase employment. Profit margins will not improve during 1962, although most industries will do better in terms of gross and volume.

40. Bond prices will not change much during 1962, except in the case of "non-taxables". European investors are buying American stocks and bonds feeling that their money is safer in United States industries and real estate. Even the first mortgage bonds of transcontinental railroads are being bought by Europeans. The manufacturers of West Germany are making huge profits through the use of new machinery and low wages. They are sending their money to the United States to be invested. They seem to prefer suburban real estate, shopping centers, and electric utilities. I hope they are not buying into too many "fly-by-night" new electronic companies.

41. Buying of Mutual Funds will continue to exceed selling in 1962. Considering that brokers make much more profit by selling Mutual Funds than by selling shares of individual stocks—and considering the thousands of salesmen selling Mutual Funds—this should help stock prices during 1962. Remember that the Mutual Funds operators must go to the New York Stock Exchange to purchase stock to support these Mutual Funds which salesmen are selling in the field.

42. The so-called "service industries" — including education, beauty parlors, travel, entertainment, and government positions — should prosper in 1962.

43. Among the fastest growing industries in 1962 will be the plastics and glass industries. These materials will gradually take the place of wood, stone, cement, and even some metals, —except as these are colored. Plastics and glass will become more important building materials and perhaps be used much more for automobiles.

44. Some unexpected event or discovery will cause the Dow-Jones Industrial Average to sell higher during the next few years.

45. I am bullish on Canada for safe investments during 1962. Canada has a small population of only 18,000,000, but it is rich in natural resources and has a sound, progressive government. I do not expect a nuclear war to be started by Russia; but if it comes, Canada will be a good place to live and to have your money invested.

46. South and Central America also have great natural resources; but most of their countries are ruled by selfish dictators. I believe most of our southern neighbors will suffer from serious inflation during 1962 and become a great problem for the United States.

47. Although the countries of Europe could be the greater sufferers in case of World War III, the people I meet in Europe fall to realize this. I forecast that they will look at the situation more realistically during 1962.

48. West Germany is very prosperous; East Germany is in terrible condition. Much unemployment exists in Italy, France, and even Great Britain. I advise against investing money in Europe during 1962.

49. I am uncertain how to advise about Africa. But it is very rich in natural resources—including gold, diamonds, and almost every metal—as well as having the greatest undeveloped water-power in the world. Barclays Bank I am personally acquainted with and recommend. Both Barclays and the Standard Bank are owned in England and have a great many branches; the latter has over 850 branch offices in Africa. Readers who are interested in keeping in touch with Africa may secure free of charge the Standard Bank Monthly Review by writing the Standard Bank of South Africa, 10 Clement Lane, London, EC 4. The banking of Northern Africa is controlled by the French. I would advise against putting money into North Africa during 1962.

50. The final result of 1962—whether it will make us a stronger or a softer nation—spiritually, physically, and mentally—depends upon our parents, teachers, reachers, and newspaper publishers. These, and not Russia, hold the future of the United States in their hands.

40. Bond prices will not change much during 1962, except in the case of "non-taxables". European investors are buying American stocks and bonds, feeling that their money is safer in United States industries and real estate. Even the first mortgage bonds of transcontinental railroads are being bought by Europeans. The manufacturers of West Germany are making huge profits through the use of new machinery and low wages. They are sending their money to the United States to be invested. They seem to prefer suburban real estate, shopping centers, and electric utilities. I hope they are not buying into too many "fly-by-night" new electronic companies.

41. Buying of Mutual Funds will continue to exceed selling in 1962. Considering that brokers make much more profit by selling Mutual Funds than by selling shares of individual stocks—and considering the thousands of salesmen selling Mutual Funds—this should help stock prices during 1962. Remember that the Mutual Funds operators must go to the New York Stock Exchange to purchase stock to support these Mutual Funds which salesmen are selling in the field.

42. The so-called "service industries"—including education, beauty parlors, travel, entertainment, and government positions—should prosper in 1962.

43. Among the fastest growing industries in 1962 will be the plastics and glass industries. These materials will gradually take the place of wood, stone, cement, and even some metals, except as these are colored. Plastics and glass will become more important building materials and perhaps be used much more for automobiles.

44. Some unexpected event or discovery will cause the Dow-Jones Industrial Average to sell higher during the next few years.

is an illustration of what one of these unexpected events will be, mention the polymer developments in chemistry, including "DNA" and "RNA", which may provide the source of life and extend it—yes, perhaps restore it, in special cases.

45. I am bullish on Canada for safe investments during 1962. Canada has a small population of only 18,000,000, but it is rich in natural resources and has a sound, progressive government. I do not expect a nuclear war to be started by Russia; but if it comes, Canada will be a good place to live and to have your money invested.

46. South and Central America also have great natural resources; but most of their countries are ruled by selfish dictators. I believe most of our southern neighbors will suffer from serious inflation during 1962 and become a great problem for the United States.

47. Although the countries of Europe could be the greater sufferers in case of World War III, the people I meet in Europe fail to realize this. I forecast that they will look at the situation more realistically during 1962.

48. West Germany is very prosperous; East Germany is in terrible condition. Much unemployment exists in Italy, France, and even Great Britain. I advise against investing money in Europe during 1962.

49. I am uncertain how to advise about Africa. But it is very rich in natural resources—including gold, diamonds, and almost every metal—as well as having the greatest undeveloped waterpower in the world. Barclays Bank I am personally acquainted with and recommend. Both Barclays and the Standard Bank are owned in England and have a great many branches; the latter has over 850 branch offices in Africa. Readers who are interested in keeping in touch with Africa may secure free of charge the Standard Bank Monthly Review by writing the Standard Bank of South Africa, 10 Clement Lane, London, EC 4. The banking of Northern Africa is controlled by the French. I would advise against putting money into Northern Africa during 1962.

50. The final result of 1962, whether it will make us a stronger or a softer nation—spiritually, physically, and mentally—depends upon our parents, teachers, preachers, and newspaper publishers. These, and not Russia, hold the future of the United States in their hands.

Marker Placed On Grave Of Capt. Skidmore

FRANKLIN, W. Va. — Exploits of a Pendleton County soldier who fought in the French and Indian War and served as a spy during the Revolutionary War will not be forgotten.

Recently, almost 200 years after serving his country in time of conflict, a Revolutionary War marker was erected in memory of Capt. John Skidmore of the Virginia Militia.

Inscribed on the slab of white granite are these brief words: "John Skidmore, Virginia, Captain VA Militia, REV War, June 10, 1736, October 12, 1809."

The marker was erected at Capt. Skidmore's burial place—a hilltop overlooking the South Branch Valley, an area which probably has changed little since the day when he matched wits with the Indian and spied on British sympathizers. It is located on the Walter B. Smith farm near Ruddle, seven miles north of Franklin.

Furnished by the Department of Defense at the request of Mrs. Orrie S. Haslacker of Washington, and Dr. Charles P. Harper of Huntington, the marker was set by Walter W. Black, Charles Hamilton, Arthur Mitchell and Walter B. Smith, all descendants of the Skidmore-Henkle families.

According to Dr. Charles P. Harper, chairman of the West Virginia Historic Commission and a native of Pendleton County, a brief sketch of the life of Capt. Skidmore is as follows:

John Skidmore was born June 10, 1736, in Kent county, Delaware. In 1754 he and his parents, Joseph and Agnes (Caldwell) Skidmore, migrated to Augusta (now Pendleton) county, Va., and settled near Ruddle.

In 1760 he married Mary Magdalena Henkle who was born February 1, 1743 and died October 18, 1829. She was a daughter of John Justus Henkle who was born February 10, 1706 in Daudenzell, Germany, and died August 11, 1778 at the old Henkle Fort which was built on his homestead in Germany Valley near Riverton.

Capt. Skidmore enlisted in the military service during the French and Indian War and was commissioned a captain August 10, 1768. While serving under Col. Charles Lewis, commander of the Augusta County Regiment, he saw action in the Battle of Point Pleasant (called the first battle of the Revolution) and was wounded in the hip October 10, 1774. His name is inscribed on the battle monument in Tu Endie We State Park at Point Pleasant.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, Capt. Skidmore again enlisted for Army service October 10, 1776, and served in the Augusta County Militia. On April 28, 1778, the Rockingham County Court recommended to Gov. Patrick Henry that he be commissioned a major, but Capt. Skidmore declined and tendered his resignation (in absentia) at the next term of court May 25, 1778.

Capt. Skidmore's Revolutionary War experience included seven months of spying and "ranging" over West Augusta with his brother-in-law, Lt. Isaac Henkle, and his younger brother, Ensign Samuel Skidmore, and other members of his family.

In 1788 Pendleton County was formed from Rockingham county and Skidmore served as the first president of the new Pendleton County Court. Later he served two terms as sheriff of the county.

After his marriage, he built a brick house on the South Branch of the Potomac between Ruddle and Upper Tract. It was torn down about 1890.

Capt. Skidmore died October 12, 1809, at the age of 73. He was buried in the family graveyard back of the house which he had built. Thirteen of his children survived him.

W. Va. Beaver Season To Open

ELKINS—A hardy group of outdoorsmen will brave weather, deep snows and long hikes as the 1962 West Virginia beaver trapping season gets underway today after 8 a. m. Limits for the two-month long season are eight per day or eight per season.

Trappers will need a $2 license and, if they trap on national forest land, a $1 national forest hunting and trapping stamp. As required by law, all beaver trappers must secure written permission to trap on lands other than their own.

E. M. Oliver, supervisor of the Monongahela National Forest, reports that the entire forest will be open to beaver trapping during the season.

Barton PTA To Meet

BARTON — The Parent Teachers Association of the Barton Elementary School will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the school auditorium with Mrs. Reginald Kyle Jr., presiding.

100 Pint Quota Set For Visit Of Bloodmobile

OAKLAND — The Red Cross bloodmobile unit will visit the Oakland fire hall January 10 from noon to 6 p. m. to accommodate donors, according to Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, blood recruitment chairman. The quota is 100 pints.

Mrs. Stemple pointed out that the century-mark quota was surpassed during the unit's last visit here in September.

Last year Garrett county received a plaque for having the highest percentage of its quota among 30 chapters in the Johns-town area.

In charge of the canteen will be Mrs. Cecil Smith. Assisting here are Mrs. Russell Smith, Mrs. Joseph Hinebaugh Sr., Mrs. Charles C. Reckard, Mrs. Eugene Nordeck, Mrs. Donald Stemple and Mrs. Karl Kahl.

Garrett Men To Be Drafted

Thirteen young men have been called for induction into the armed forces January 10, according to Mrs. Helen C. Bittinger, clerk of the local Selective Service board.

At the same time registrants will report for physical examinations.

Marker Placed On Grave Of Capt. Skidmore

FRANKLIN, W. Va. — Exploits of a Pendleton County soldier who fought in the French and Indian War and served as a spy during the Revolutionary War will not be forgotten.

Recently, almost 200 years after serving his country in time of conflict, a Revolutionary War marker was erected in memory of Capt. John Skidmore of the Virginia Militia.

Inscribed on the slab of white granite are these brief words: "John Skidmore, Virginia, Captain VA Militia, REV War, June 10, 1736, October 12, 1809."

The marker was erected at Capt. Skidmore's burial place—a hilltop overlooking the South Branch Valley, an area which probably has changed little since the day when he matched wits with the Indian and spied on British sympathizers. It is located on the Walter B. Smith farm near Ruddle, seven miles north of Franklin.

Furnished by the Department of Defense at the request of Mrs. Orrie S. Haslacker of Washington, and Dr. Charles P. Harper of Huntington, the marker was set by Walter W. Black, Charles Hamilton, Arthur Mitchell and Walter B. Smith, all descendants of the Skidmore-Henkle families.

According to Dr. Charles P. Harper, chairman of the West Virginia Historic Commission and a native of Pendleton County, a brief sketch of the life of Capt. Skidmore is as follows:

John Skidmore was born June 10, 1736, in Kent county, Delaware. In 1754 he and his parents, Joseph and Agnes (Caldwell) Skidmore, migrated to Augusta (now Pendleton) county, Va., and settled near Ruddle.

In 1760 he married Mary Magdalena Henkle who was born February 1, 1743 and died October 18, 1829. She was a daughter of John Justus Henkle who was born February 10, 1706 in Daudenzell, Germany, and died August 11, 1778 at the old Henkle Fort which was built on his homestead in Germany Valley near Riverton.

Capt. Skidmore enlisted in the military service during the French and Indian War and was commissioned a captain August 10, 1768. While serving under Col. Charles Lewis, commander of the Augusta County Regiment, he saw action in the Battle of Point Pleasant (called the first battle of the Revolution) and was wounded in the hip October 10, 1774. His name is inscribed on the battle monument in Tu Endie Wee State Park at Point Pleasant.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, Capt. Skidmore again enlisted for Army service October 10, 1776, and served in the Augusta County Militia. On April 28, 1778, the Rockingham County Court recommended to Gov. Patrick Henry that he be commissioned a major, but Capt. Skidmore declined and tendered his resignation (in absentia) at the next term of court May 25, 1778.

Capt. Skidmore's Revolutionary War experience included seven months of spying and "ranging" over West Augusta with his brother-in-law, Lt. Isaac Henkle, and his younger brother, Ensign Samuel Skidmore, and other members of his family.

In 1788 Pendleton County was formed from Rockingham county and Skidmore served as the first president of the new Pendleton County Court. Later he served two terms as sheriff of the county.

After his marriage, he built a brick house on the South Branch of the Potomac between Ruddle and Upper Tract. It was torn down about 1890.

Capt. Skidmore died October 12, 1809, at the age of 73. He was buried in the family graveyard back of the house which he had built. Thirteen of his children survived him.

W. Va. Beaver Season To Open
ELKINS — A hardy group of outdoorsmen will brave weather, deep snows and long hikes as the 1962 West Virginia beaver trapping season gets underway today after 8 a. m. Limits for the two-month long season are eight per day or eight per season.

Trappers will need a $2 license and, if they trap on national forest land, a $1 national forest hunting and trapping stamp. As required by law, all beaver trappers must secure written permission to trap on lands other than their own.

E. M. Oliver, supervisor of the Monongahela National Forest, reports that the entire forest will be open to beaver trapping during the season.

100 Pint Quota Set For Visit Of Bloodmobile

OAKLAND — The Red Cross bloodmobile unit will visit the Oakland fire hall January 10 from noon to 6 p. m. to accommodate donors, according to Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, blood recruitment chairman. The quota is 100 pints.

Mrs. Stemple pointed out that the century-mark quota was surpassed during the unit's last visit here in September.

Last year Garrett county received a plaque for having the highest percentage of its quota among 30 chapters in the Johnstown area.

In charge of the canteen will be Mrs. Cecil Smith. Assisting here are Mrs. Russell Smith, Mrs. Joseph Hinebaugh Sr., Mrs. Charles C. Reckard, Mrs. Eugene Nordeck, Mrs. Donald Stemple and Mrs. Karl Kahl.

Green Bay Clobbers Giants, 37-0, To Capture NFL Title

Hornung Gets 19 Points In Playoff Game

Starr Fires Three TD Passes; Winners Collect $5,194 Each

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Paul Hornung, an $87.50 a month Army private with a quarter million dollars worth of football talent, scored a playoff record 19 points in leading the Green Bay Packers to the National Football League championship Sunday with a 37-0 rout of the luckless New York Giants.

The triumph brought the Packers their first NFL championship since 1944 and touched off a joyous New Year's celebration in this snow blanketed community of 63,000, which the natives have named "Title Town USA."

Hornung, on leave from the Army at Fort Riley, Kan., broke the Giants' resistance early in the game with his bull-like rushes on the frozen turf at Green Bay City Stadium. He scored Green Bay's first touchdown, kicked four conversions and three field goals in a superb performance that justified his selection as player of the year.

The championship — the seventh in Green Bay's history as a charter franchise in the NFL — earned the Packers the winners' portion of the NFL's first million dollar championship game.

Winners Get $5,195

Green Bay's share of nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be divided into prizes of $5,195 for each player. The Giants' losing share will be $3,339.99.

A crowd of 39,029, largest ever to watch the Packers in Green Bay, and a television audience estimated at 50 million, watched Hornung break the old NFL playoff record of 18 points set by Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns against the Detroit Lions in 1954.

Hornung Had Help

Hornung, who gained a total of 89 yards in 20 rushes and caught three passes for an additional 47 yards, had an excellent supporting cast in fullback Jim Taylor, quarterback Bart Starr, who threw three touchdown passes, and the magnificent Green Bay offensive line, rated one of the best in pro football.

Starr, whose passing had been overshadowed by the running of Hornung and Taylor as the Packers won the western division crown, threw touchdown tosses of 13 yards to Boyd Dowler and of 14 and 13 yards to Ron Kramer.

Hornung's field goals sailed 17, 22 and 19 yards.

There was no doubt of the superiority of Coach Vince Lombardi's men from the opening period. In total offense, the Packers outgained the Giants 345 yards to 130. Green Bay intercepted four passes and held the Giants to a net of 31 on the ground.

A pass-interference penalty helped the Packers to their first touchdown, although from the manner from which Hornung and Taylor were bullying their way the Giant line in that initial 80-yard drive, the Packers did not need the breaks.

Title's Passes Flop

Pass interceptions against Y. A. Tittle set up Green Bay's next two touchdowns, a Giant offense penalty stopped the clock in time for Hornung's first field goal on the last play of the opening half, and a fumbled punt by Joe Morrison preceded Hornung's 22-yard field goal in the third period.

By that time, the Packers led, 27-0, and well under way toward climaxing their surge to the NFL championship under the three-year regime of Lombardi.

Lombardi, 48, left his job as Giant's backfield coach to take over the Packers after they had compiled a dismal 1-10-1 record in 1958. The Packers won last year's Western Division crown but were beaten in the playoff but scored the next four times they gained possession of the ball during the first half.

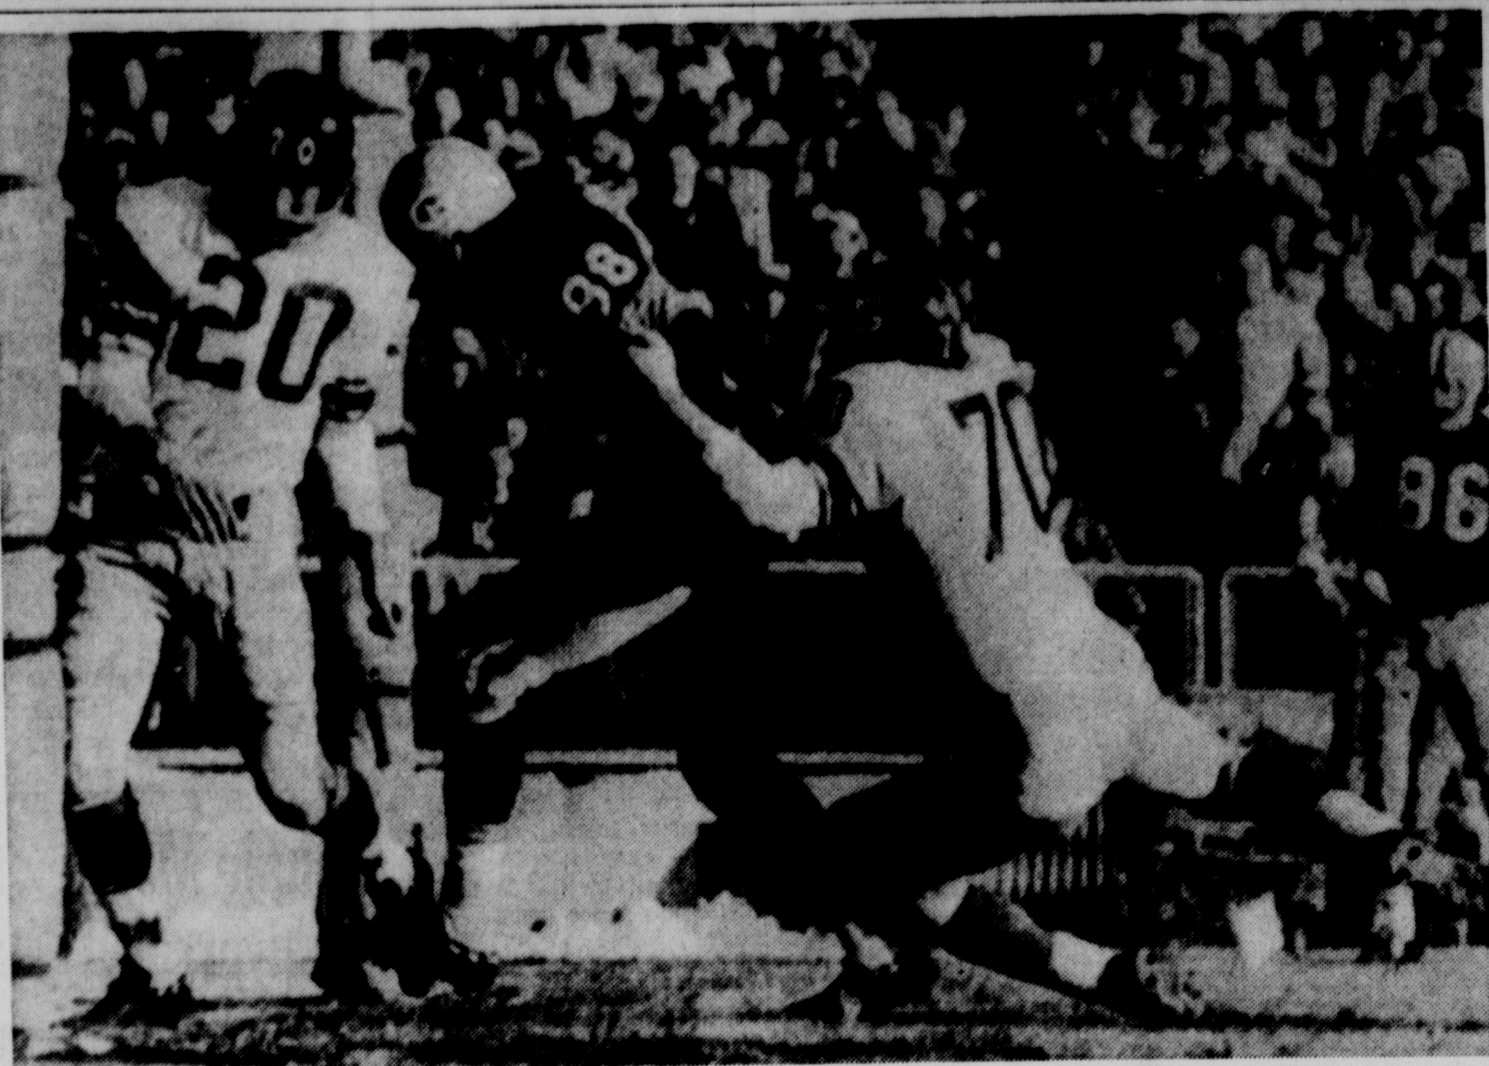

Interference Penalty Helps

Green Bay's first score came on an 80-yard drive in which a pass interference penalty against New York's Erich Barnes produced a first down on the New York seven. Hornung carried over from the six on the first play of the second period.

On the third play after the following kickoff, Tittle's pass was deflected by defensive tackle Hank Jordan and plucked out of the air on the Giants' 43 by linebacker Ray Nitschke, another of Green Bay's weekend Army stars. Nitschke ran the ball to the New York 34.

Starr passed 16 yards to Ron Kramer for a first down on the 18 and two plays later hit Dowler, the third of the Packers' Army privates, with a 13-yard pass in the end zone.

Tittle, whose brilliant passing early in the season had started the Giants on their drive to the Eastern Division title, had another pass intercepted once again almost immediately after the ensuing kickoff. This time Hank Gremminger stole the ball on the (Continued on Page 10)

Hornung Gets 19 Points In Playoff Game

Starr Fires Three TD Passes; Winners Collect $5,194 Each

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Paul Hornung, an $87.50 a month Army private with a quarter million dollars worth of football talent, scored a playoff record 19 points in leading the Green Bay Packers to the National Football League championship Sunday with a 37-0 rout of the luckless New York Giants.

The triumph brought the Packers their first NFL championship since 1944 and touched off a joyous New Year's celebration in this snow blanketed community of 63,000, which the natives have renamed "Title Town USA."

Hornung, on leave from the Army at Fort Riley, Kan., broke the Giants' resistance early in the game with his bull-like rushes on the frozen turf at Green Bay City Stadium. He scored Green Bay's first touchdown, kicked four conversions and three field goals in a superb performance that justified his selection as player of the year.

The championship — the seventh in Green Bay's history as a charter franchise in the NFL — earned the Packers the winners' portion of the NFL's first million dollar championship game.

Winners Get $5,195

Green Bay's share of nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be divided into prizes of $5,195 for each player. The Giants' losing share will be $3,339.99.

A crowd of 39,029, largest ever to watch the Packers in Green Bay, and a television audience estimated at 50 million, watched Hornung break the old NFL play-off record of 18 points set by Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns against the Detroit Lions in 1954.

Hornung Had Help

Hornung, who gained a total of 89 yards in 20 rushes and caught three passes for an additional 47 yards, had an excellent supporting cast in fullback Jim Taylor, quarterback Bart Starr, who threw three touchdown passes, and the magnificent Green Bay offensive line, rated one of the best in pro football.

Starr, whose passing had been overshadowed by the running of Hornung and Taylor as the Packers won the western division crown, threw touchdown tosses of 13 yards to Boyd Dowler and of 14 and 13 yards to Ron Kramer.

Hornung's field goals sailed 17, 22 and 19 yards.

There was no doubt of the superiority of Coach Vince Lombardi's men from the opening period.

In total offense, the Packers outgained the Giants 345 yards to 130. Green Bay intercepted four passes and held the Giants to a net of 31 on the ground.

A pass-interference penalty helped the Packers to their first touchdown, although from the manner in which Hornung and Taylor were bullying their way the Giant line in that initial 80-yard drive, the Packers did not need the breaks.

Title's Passes Flog

Pass interceptions against Y. A. Tittle set up Green Bay's next two touchdowns, a Giant offense penalty stopped the clock in time for Hornung's first field goal on the last play of the opening half, and a fumbled punt by Joe Morrison preceded Hornung's 22-yard field goal in the third period.

By that time, the Packers led 27-0, and well under way toward climaxing their surge to the NFL championship under the three-year regime of Lombardi.

Lombardi, 48, had left his job as Giant's backfield coach to take over the Packers after they had compiled a dismal 1-10-1 record in 1958. The Packers won last year's Western Division crown but were beaten in the playoff but scored the next four times they gained possession of the ball during the first half.

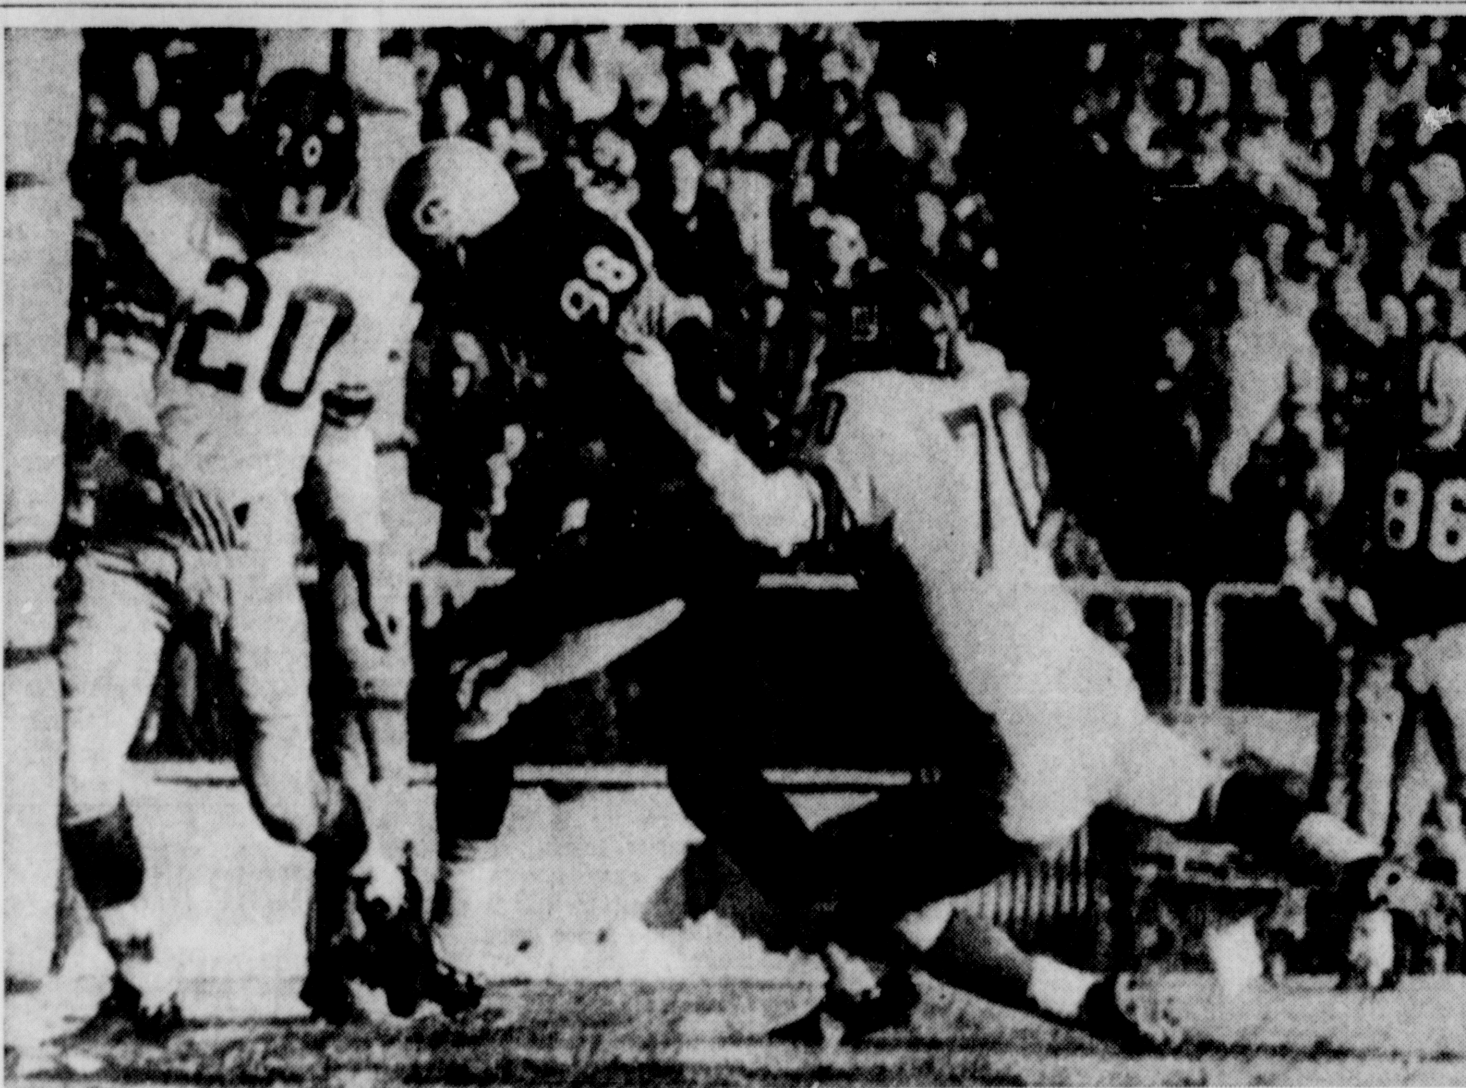

Interference Penalty Helps

Green Bay's first score came on an 80-yard drive in which a pass interference penalty against New York's Erich Barnes produced a first down on the New York seven. Hornung carried over from the six on the first play of the second period.

On the third play after the following kickoff, Tittle's pass was deflected by defensive tackle Hank Jordan and plucked out of the air on the Giants' 43 by linebacker Ray Nitschke, another of Green Bay's weeken' Army stars. Nitschke ran the ball to the New York 34.

Starr passed 16 yards to Ron Kramer for a first down on the 18 and two plays later hit Dowler, the third of the Packers' Army privates, with a 13-yard pass in the end zone.

Tittle, whose brilliant passing early in the season had started the Giants on their drive to the Eastern Division title, had another pass intercepted once again almost immediately after the ensuing kickoff. This time Hank Greminger stole the ball on (Continued on Page 10)

Sparked by Jim Brannon, who scored nine field goals and grabbed 17 rebounds, Coach Bob Mattingly's SS. Peter & Paul quint notched its third straight win of the Catholic Youth Basketball League campaign by trimming St. Michael's defending champions yesterday at Frostburg by the score of 69-30.

The setback was the second straight for St. Michael's. Brannon dumped in 18 points, Kerry Kelly collected an even dozen and Ted Malloy garnered ten for the victors. Langan and R. Arnold accounted for 20 of Frostburg's 30 points.

SS. Peter & Paul turned in a shooting average of 45 per cent from the field.

St. Patrick's made its record 2-1 by downing St. Mary's Gaels to the tune of 43-32 at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

Bobby Boyle and Dennis Carolan paced St. Patrick's scorers with 14 and 11 tallies, respectively.

Humbertson chalked up 14 points to lead St. Mary's scorers.

In Memoriam

In memory of Guy Long. He was a friend of everyone. A helpful hand in every way. We'll miss him, oh how we'll miss him. This friend who couldn't be saved. He'll dwell in the House of the Lord. I'm sure a place of honor, his reward. So peace to you, Guy.

From those who mourn to see you go.
—Wife, Mabel, Son, Richard, and Sisters—

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Ida Ida Laurent, who passed this life 17 years ago, January 1, 1965. There's an open gate at the end of the road. Through each must go alone. And there in a light we cannot see. Our Father claims his own. Beyond the gate our loved one. Find happiness and rest. And there is comfort in the thought That a loving God knows best.
—Sons, Daughters and Grandchildren—

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ 10 6 4 2 ♥ 9 4 ♠ 2 ♣ K 7 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. You shot your load when you made your overall. Let partner now decide what to do.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ 6 ♥ K 3 ♠ K A Q 6 4 ♠ A J 7 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Our preference is two clubs, though we would not find fault with anyone who chose to bid three clubs. This is a powerful hand and, if our suits were spades and hearts, we would surely make a jump shift but, inasmuch as it appears that we must play this hand in a minor suit, we prefer to take it slow and hear partner's next response.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ A K 10 8 5 ♥ J 9 4 ♠ Q J 9 7 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Four spades. Your hand is equivalent to an opening bid facing an opening bid, and partner is marked to have club support in view of the fact that the opponents bid hearts in a minor suit. North's failure to double two diamonds indicates that his own suit was very weak and that he has scattered values in the other suits.

Q. 4—East-West vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠ K Q J 10 8 7 ♥ 9 4 ♠ A J 9 8 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Three spades. While it is true that partner may be amply provided to take care of West defensively, nevertheless your hand is bound to prove a disappointment to partner in his attempt to defeat three hearts. It may prove that you will produce only one defensive trick.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ 10 6 5 ♥ A K Q 7 ♠ J 9 6 ♠ Q J 4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. A three bid, in this day and age, does not denote strength, and it certainly denotes a hand less than an opening bid. You can almost be certain if you bid that partner has the type of hand on which he will proceed to four spades, in which case it is highly likely the opponents will double. Also, if you pass, the opponents may think your partner is trying to steal something and may enter the bidding. Nothing could suit your purpose better.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. It would be poor tactics for you to raise to two spades, giving partner the impression that you have a strong double. Your hand is more or less of a minimum character, the opponents may think your partner is trying to steal something and may enter the bidding. Nothing could suit your purpose better.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

A careful diagnosis of the situation enabled West to execute a rare defensive coup today to sink declarer's ship.

Against the four spade contract, West led the jack of hearts. East won with the ace and returned the queen. Had East chosen to pass the first trick to South's king, the hand would have unfolded in a different manner. But East was afraid a duck might prove costly if his partner had opened a singleton.

South led a diamond to the king in order to try the spade finesse. When East showed out, the loss of two spades and two hearts appeared inevitable. However, South played on in the hope that something might happen. South won with the ace, led a club to the ace and ruffed a club. He returned to dummy with the jack of diamonds and ruffed another club. He then led his last diamond to dummy and, on the fourth round of clubs, declarer ruffed in with the queen of spades. He had played the preceding tricks in such rapid order that he hoped to lure West into the rhythm. Had West been hurried into overruffing South's queen, the defense would have collapsed, for West would have to lead a spade and sacrifice his second trump trick, or a diamond, which permits declarer to ruff in dummy and discard his losing heart.

West declined to overruff but had to choose his discard with great care. If he made the lazy discard of the seven of diamonds, he would surrender the contract, for declarer would get out with a heart; West would be forced to ruff and, in the end play, concede a trick to declarer's jack of trumps. West therefore made the unusual discard of a trump, and declarer was now helpless. As he got out with a heart, West let the diamond. East was in at trick 11, and West took the last two tricks with the king and ten of spades.

Boy Burned In Fire At Slabtown

James Binnix, 14, Hurt In Attempt To Aid Brother

A 14-year-old Slabtown boy was badly burned yesterday morning when he ran into his burning home to help an older brother he thought was in the house.

The youth, James Binnix, son of Harold and Mary Binnix, was reported in "fair" condition at Miners Hospital, Frostburg, with burns on his face, hands, chest, back and legs.

James ran into the flaming house to help his brother, Harold Binnix Jr., 18, who was not with the rest of the family who escaped the blaze. However, Harold Jr. was not at home when the fire started at approximately 5:30 a. m.

Father Helps Him

Firemen said the father grabbed his son and rolled him on the ground to try to put out his son's burning nightclothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Binnix and two other children, Diane, 15, and David, 17, managed to flee the burning house without injury, but were unable to save any of their belongings.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Binnix, who told firemen she woke up and smelled smoke. The fire apparently started in the kitchen when a stove over-heated.

Fire Chief Michael Reagan of the Mt. Savage Fire Company said the alarm was received at 5:50 a. m., but when the truck arrived the blaze already was out of control.

Two Companies Fight Fire

Chief Reagan said 17 men from his company responded to the call and several members of the Frostburg Company also assisted in fighting the fire.

The small two-story frame building was owned by Mrs. Virginia Trimble and was located on the Slabtown Road about a mile and a half from Mt. Savage.

Mr. and Mrs. Binnix have two other married daughters living in Frostburg, and it is reported the homeless family plans to stay with one of the daughters.

Y Schedules 17 New Classes For Adults

Seventeen adult informal education classes will start this month and next at Central YMCA, Benjamin F. Haines, program director, announced yesterday.

Persons interested in any of the courses may register by phoning the Y and by paying the fee for the course at least by the first class meeting. A 10 per cent reduction in fees is provided for persons who take more than one course, and YMCA members get reduced rates for all courses. All courses last 10 weeks.

The courses are listed below, with instructors, meeting times, starting dates and prices for Y members and non-members in that order.

Home Destroyed By Fire

Shown above are the remains of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Binnix of Slabtown, which was destroyed by fire early yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Binnix and two of their children managed to escape the blaze uninjured, but their son, James,

14, was badly burned when he ran back into the burning house to help an older brother, unaware that his brother was not at home when the fire started. The Binnix family was not able to save any of its possessions.

Babson Sees:

Neither Disarmament Nor War During 1962

By ROGER W. BABSON

1. I am hopeful for 1962; it should be a better year for my readers than 1961. Industrial production will exceed that of 1961.

2. There will be neither a nuclear war nor total disarmament in 1962. Considerable progress may be made toward a ban on atomic weapons.

3. Some thirty stocks may reach an average of 1000 during 1962, although these will not necessarily be the thirty Dow-Jones stocks.

4. Retail trade will make new records during 1962. Increased newspaper advertising, especially in colors, will be a great boon to merchandising.

5. Commodity prices will act erratic during 1962. Agricultural prices will be held up by legislation, but many metals will sell for less.

6. The official cost-of-living figure will rise slightly in 1962, but there may be a scandal in Washington over how this figure is calculated or adjusted. The real increase in the cost-of-living will be due to increased wages demanded.

7. The only certain shortages during 1962 will be in land suitable for parking places and waterfront property readily accessible to building lots; also for automobile "graveyards" near cities which have been zoned.

8. The building of shelters will look silly before the end of 1962. Certainly the Federal Government will not underwrite the building of private shelters for individual families.

9. Good real estate must rise in price as the population increases. Elementary mathematics determines the price of suburban real estate. This is notwithstanding the claim of the "space companies" which are said to be interested in selling rights on the moon. There probably are crazier speculations.

10. While the land on which your house now stands should increase in value during 1962, the building itself depreciates from the moment when it is first occupied. A possible exception would be certain very attractive ranch houses painted in color.

11. Automobile production will be the most important statistical indicator during 1962. This applies to both the number of automobiles and their sales value. We now have no reliable figures for the latter.

12. We will gradually approach an average of two cars for every family. The life of automobiles should gradually increase. The percentage of automobiles annually destroyed will decrease in 1962.

13. Automobiles and gasoline will be, increasingly, sources for raising money by taxation. These means will be extended to include an additional assessment on the manufacturers of automobiles.

14. Taxes, as a whole, will continue to increase in 1962 for every family. Business net taxes, however, will decrease in 1962, though the granting of depreciation refunds which can be done by Executive order. The manufacturer may greatly increase his deductions for past investments and new machinery, plant, and equipment. Douglas Dillon feels that such tax reductions will increase the purchase of new equipment, develop greater efficiency, and result in a net improvement in the employment situation. This is good news for 1962.

15. Speculation in real estate and securities will be active during 1962; but good children will gradually be recognized as the best investment. Young people will be married earlier and will want to have large families.

16. Public education will gradually be recognized during the years ahead. Schoolhouses will be built as places to "park the kids" while the parents are at work. New schoolhouses will be built so as not to be over one story high, with lots of sunshine.

17. Owing to the lack of airport facilities and to inadequate equipment, there will be increased ing airplane accidents during 1962.

18. With all the above changes, plus increased public improvements and longer vacation periods, must save somehow and cut somewhere. I think it will begin in 1962 with clothing. This will gradually become cheaper and more attention will be paid to color.

19. The time is approaching when the weaving of cloth will be greatly curtailed. Clothes will be made like paper. Plastic coats are already on the market. These are produced by feeding the cellophane into a machine which cuts to desired sizes and bonds (not sews) the material into beautifully finished goods of different colors.

20. We will hear more about automation during 1962. But the cost of building automatic factories is so great that the change is coming slowly. Even electronics has been overemphasized.

21. There need be no unemployment among steel during 1962. But Government unemployment figures will remain high. Foreign competition, due to low wages abroad, will be an important factor. Women will prefer to work in air-conditioned factories and have their home pantries filled with precooked foods.

22. Labor unrest will grow in extent and power. The Kennedy Administration is friendly to union leaders and their demands. There will be demands for more "fringes" in 1962. A steel strike is possible.

23. This means that with increased taxes, prices of retail products will be higher. This will be blamed on "inflation" of money; but it will be due to inflation of living standards.

24. The real value of the dollar will decline slightly during 1962, due to the decrease in the productivity of labor. The electronics industry will temporarily suffer in 1962 if atomic warfare is outlawed. But otherwise the electronics industry will increase for some years to come and hold up the dollar value. Watch polymer chemicals and "epoxy" cements.

25. There will be enough money for mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration in 1962. Plenty of money will be available for mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, although this supply varies with different sections of the country. Interest rates on conventional loans not having any government guarantees will be a little higher. Real estate people will worry about the public's desire to build, rather than about their obtaining mortgage money.

County, State Elections Are Set This Year

Cumberland Also To Elect Officials

One of the significant facts about the new year starting today is that it is the occasion for state and county elections.

Because the once-every-four-years election takes place in 1962, the office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement assumes a position of greater importance.

It is in this office that candidates for county offices must file on or before March 5, which is 70 days before the May 15 primary election. So far only one candidate actually has filed his papers with John R. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, the Democratic and Republican registrars. He is C. William Welsh, 35, of 205 East Laing Avenue, who filed as a Republican candidate for county commissioner subject to the May 15 primary election. He filed on November 8.

The impending election also is expected to stimulate voter registration. Any person of 21 years who will have lived in Allegany County one year on or before November 6 may register now and vote in both the primary election as well as the general election on November 6. Similarly, any person who will have reached his 21st birthday on or before November 6 may register and vote in the primary election as well.

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Neat are on duty Monday through Friday, except holidays, from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p. m. for the registration of voters. There also will be visits to the chief communities around the county before the April 14 deadline. No one will be permitted to register in the 30 days immediately before the primary election.

Persons who have failed to vote since 1956 must re-register. Their names were removed from the poll books last November for failure to vote in five years.

Cumberlanders will get to vote four times this year, as municipal elections will be held this summer. The city primary is June 5, the general election June 19.

Rotary Club To Meet

The Cumberland Rotary Club will meet tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the YMCA. Rev. Maurice Robertson will give the annual New Year's message.

Red Cross Cites Blood Donor Slump

Bloodmobile Visits Set Next Week

The Johnstown Regional Red Cross Blood Center is experiencing one of its seasonal slumps, according to Mrs. Harry Beneman, blood chairman for the Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Mrs. Beneman said the Christmas-New Year's holiday period is second only to the "summer doldrums" when it comes to critical shortages of blood donors and therefore, inventories are very low.

Steps are now being taken to offset this annual dropoff in donations, but the center anticipates difficulty in meeting the demand for blood until the latter part of January. All chapters are urged to meet or exceed their quotas.

Two Red Cross Bloodmobile visits are scheduled in this area in January. The first is Tuesday, January 9 at the American Legion Home, Frostburg, from noon until 6 p. m., and the other at the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, Wednesday, January 10, from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m.

A. C. Howard, chairman of the Kelly-Springfield blood bank, states the plant is already scheduling donors and a joint group representing management and labor will be in charge of the visit.

When the bloodmobile unit visited the Kelly plant last June, employees donated 229 pints of blood and it is hoped that the plant can come up to this record during the January 10 visit.

Mrs. Beneman urges residents of Allegany County to start off the New Year by donating a pint of blood to help those who cannot help themselves.

Christmas Tree Collection Set

Christmas trees will be collected in Cumberland on January 10, 11 and 12 in the various sections of the city, according to the R&R Sanitary Service, city garbage contractors.

All Yule trees should be placed on the curbing by 7 a. m. Trees in the West Side area will be collected January 10, in the North Cumberland section January 11 and in the South End on January 12.

Auxiliary To Meet

The Mothers' Auxiliary of Troop 6, Cub and Boy Scouts, will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the scout room of St. Peter and Paul par-

Cresaptown Named Critical Sewage Area

Most Sewer Lines Not Approved

Only a few houses in the Cresaptown area have properly installed septic systems and none of the sewer lines leading to a stream which runs through the town are approved, according to a report by the Maryland State Health Department, Allegany County Health Department, Dr. Ross Cameron, acting deputy state health officer and J. Byron Dowling, senior sanitarian.

The report designates Cresaptown along with Bowling Green, Roberts Place, Potomac Park and Fairgo as areas with critical sewage problems. The report has been referred to the Allegany County Sanitary Commission for action and copies have been forwarded to the County Commissioners.

The state and county health department report states that in reviewing the development of Cresaptown it found that throughout the years dwellings had been erected on small lots with little thought given to an adequate method of sewage disposal. Many sewer lines, particularly from houses or groups of houses with proximity to the stream running through the center of town, are discharging raw sewage directly into the stream.

In other cases sewage runs directly, or only through a septic tank, into ditches along the street, often going under these streets and draining out into vacant lots or into small streams feeding into the larger creek.

According to the report an estimated 66 per cent of the 520 houses in Cresaptown contribute to these sewage conditions. It states there are 43 unapproved sewer lines discharging into the stream in the 880-yard section running through the center of the town. In addition to this, 45 roadside ditches and catch basins contain sewage in varying degrees, from raw sewage to wash water.

As a result of these improper sewage disposal systems, the Health Department reports it has received numerous complaints from neighbors and from the County Roads Department, which is also faced with the problem of sewage-filled drainage ditches and catch basins.

Ordinarily when a complaint is received an investigation is made by a Health Department sanitarian, recommendations for corrections are made and the necessary follow-up procedures are taken, the department said.

In the case of sewage conditions in Cresaptown, however, the department reports no individual solution seems to be available for the majority of cases. Undersize lots, poor soil conditions, complexity of existing sewer lines make it impossible to install satisfactory individual sewage disposal systems on most lots, the department has concluded.

Youth Learns:

Racing Pigeon Hobby Can Pay For Itself

By ALBERT D. DARBY

News Staff Writer

Ebbie pulled a big surprise last fall when she won a 300-mile pigeon race from Cincinnati, Ohio, and her success has focused attention on a hobby of a 16-year-old Fort Hill High School junior.

The boy is William Edward Orndorff, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Orndorff.

His father is best known today as Allegany County's tax collector. It seems that Billy is the youngest of 20 members in the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club. Older and more experienced pigeon raisers generally win the important races for old birds in the spring and for young birds each fall.

But Ebbie surprised the experts by taking the long flight from Cincinnati last fall. As a reward Billy received about $60 in prize money plus a trophy. At the time he was only 15 years old because his most recent birthday did not occur until Christmas Eve. Billy gave his prize-winning bird the name Ebbie because that is the nickname of his mother.

Gift Roused Interest

Billy first became interested in pigeons about four years ago when a neighbor boy named Larry Rinker asked him to look after his birds while he was away on a vacation trip. Billy did, and as a reward the Rinker boy gave him a pair of show pigeons. That's how he got his start raising pigeons when he was only a seventh grader. The boy who first aroused his interest in pigeons now lives in Indiana.

About two years ago, Billy's interest in pigeons was switched from show birds to those bred primarily for racing.

Three different men, all active members of the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club, have helped Billy get started with his racing pigeons. C. A. Smith of LaVale, one of the club's founders, gave him his first pair of birds.

Reatus L. Spiker, who lives on Oldtown Road, also has given him birds and offered him advice on how to take care of them. His third adviser has been Joseph A. Herscuth, who lives at Oakwood Manor, a new development near Oldtown.

Mr. Smith, who has addressed a number of local service clubs on the racing pigeon, contends his interest in pigeons as a high school boy way back about 1916 helped keep him well occupied in those formative years so that he had no idle time to get into mischief. That's why he is so pleased that Billy has taken such a liking to racing pigeons.

Self-Sustaining Hobby

Billy's racing pigeon loft at 106 Humbird Street has almost 60 birds today. His racing prize money has helped him keep the hobby a self-sustaining one which does not cost his parents money. He began flying his pigeons in races in the fall of 1960.

One of Billy's neighbors likes pigeons too but his interest revolves around show pigeons. He is Paul Fisher, 41 Humbird Street, who won a number of prizes last August with pigeons he exhibited at the Cumberland Fair.

Pigeons are not Billy's only interest. Since last June he has been a carrier boy for The Cumberland News. With that job he hops out of bed at 4:45 a. m. six days a week. His sports interest centers on football and track. He was a substitute guard in football and runs the half mile in track.

Billy also is president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship of Emmanuel Methodist Church and belongs to the DeMolay.

New Shrine Board For New Year

An expanded board of directors and a potentate's advisory committee to the board have been made necessary by the $250,000 expansion of Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club and the rapid growth of Ali Ghan Temple's membership. Above are members of the two groups which will guide the operations of the club, which will be managed, beginning Thursday, by Gerd Ortmann, now maitre d'hotel at the Barclay Hotel in New York. Seated, left to right, are Woodward D. Pealer, Lewis J. Ort, illustrious potentate; John J. Hafer, Droze Zernbower, J. Wallace Close; standing, Richard W. Kirsch, George B. Newman, William Torkington, Luther Huff, William C. Holbrook and I. Newton Evans. Not present when picture was taken were Gorman E. Getty, Walter E. Dyck, Earl D. Chaney and Walter C. Close, other members of the groups.

Boy Burned In Fire At Slabtown

James Binnix, 14, Hurt In Attempt To Aid Brother

A 14-year-old Slabtown boy was badly burned yesterday morning when he ran into his burning home to help an older brother he thought was in the house.

The youth, James Binnix, son of Harold and Mary Binnix, was reported in "fair" condition at Miners Hospital, Frostburg, with burns on his face, hands, chest, back and legs.

James ran into the flaming house to help his brother, Harold Binnix Jr., 18, who was not with the rest of the family who escaped the blaze. However, Harold Jr. was not at home when the fire started at approximately 5:30 a. m.

Father Helps Him

Firemen said the father grabbed his son and rolled him on the ground to try to put out his son's burning nightclothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Binnix and two other children, Diane, 15, and David, 17, managed to flee the burning house without injury, but were unable to save any of their belongings.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Binnix, who told firemen she woke up and smelled smoke. The fire apparently started in the kitchen when a stove overheated.

Fire Chief Michael Reagan of the Mt. Savage Fire Company said the alarm was received at 5:50 a. m., but when the truck arrived the blaze already was out of control.

Two Companies Fight Fire

Chief Reagan said 17 men from his company responded to the call and several members of the Frostburg Company also assisted in fighting the fire.

The small two-story frame building was owned by Mrs. Virginia Trimble and was located on the Slabtown Road about a mile and a half from Mt. Savage.

Mr. and Mrs. Binnix have two other married daughters living in Frostburg, and it is reported the homeless family plans to stay with one of the daughters.

Home Destroyed By Fire

Shown above are the remains of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Binnix of Slabtown, which was destroyed by fire early yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Binnix and two of their children managed to escape the blaze uninjured, but their son, James,

14, was badly burned when he ran back into the burning house to help an older brother, unaware that his brother was not at home when the fire started. The Binnix family was not able to save any of its possessions.

Babson Sees:

Neither Disarmament Nor War During 1962

By ROGER W. BABSON

1. I am hopeful for 1962; it should be a better year for my readers than 1961. Industrial production will exceed that of 1961.

2. There will be neither a nuclear war nor total disarmament in 1962. Considerable progress may be made toward a ban on atomic weapons.

3. Some thirty stocks may reach an average of 1000 during 1962, although these will not necessarily be the thirty Dow-Jones stocks.

4. Retail trade will make new records during 1962. Increased newspaper advertising, especially in colors, will be a great boon to merchandising.

5. Commodity prices will act erratically during 1962. Agricultural prices will be held up by legislation, but many metals will sell for less.

6. The official cost-of-living figure will rise slightly in 1962, but there may be a scandal in Washington over how this figure is calculated or adjusted. The real increase in the cost-of-living will be due to increased wages demanded.

7. The only certain shortages during 1962 will be in land suitable for parking places and waterfront property readily available to building lots; also for automobile "graveyards" near cities which have been zoned.

8. The building of shelters will look likely before the end of 1962. Certainly the Federal Government will not underwrite the building of private shelters for individual families.

9. Good real estate must rise in price as the population increases. Elementary mathematics determines the price of suburban real estate. This is notwithstanding the claim of the "space companies" which are said to be interested in selling rights on the moon. There probably are crazier speculations.

10. While the land on which your house now stands should increase in value during 1962, the building itself depreciates from the moment when it is first occupied. A possible exception would be certain very attractive ranch houses painted in color.

11. Automobile production will be the most important statistical indicator during 1962. This applies to both the number of automobiles and their sales value. We now have no reliable figures for the latter.

12. We will gradually approach an average of two cars for every family. The life of automobiles should gradually increase. The percentage of automobiles annually destroyed will decrease in 1962.

13. Automobiles and gasoline will be, increasingly, sources for raising money by taxation. These means will be extended to include an additional assessment on the manufacturers of automobiles.

14. Taxes, as a whole, will continue to increase in 1962 for every family. Business net taxes, however, will decrease in 1962, though the granting of depreciation refunds which can be done by Executive order. The manufacturer may greatly increase his deductions for past investments and new machinery, plant, and equipment. Douglas Dillon feels that such tax reductions will increase the purchase of new equipment, develop greater efficiency, and result in a net improvement in the employment situation. This is good news for 1962.

15. Speculation in real estate and securities will be active during 1962; but good children will gradually be recognized as the best investment. Young people will be married earlier and will want to have large families.

16. Public education will gradually be recognized during the years ahead. Schoolhouses will be built as places to "park the kids" while the parents are at work. New schoolhouses will be built so as not to be over one story high, with lots of sunshine.

17. Owing to the lack of airport facilities and to inadequate equipment, there will be increasing airplane accidents during 1962.

18. With all the above changes, plus increased public improvements and longer vacation periods, must save somehow and cut somewhere. I think it will begin in 1962 with clothing. This will gradually become cheaper and more attention will be paid to color.

19. The time is approaching when the weaving of cloth will be greatly curtailed. Clothes will be made like paper. Plastic coats are already on the market. These are produced by feeding the cellophane into a machine which cuts to desired sizes and bonds (not sews) the material into beautifully finished goods of different colors.

20. We will hear more about automation during 1962. But the cost of building automatic factories is so great that the change is coming slowly. Even electronics has been overemphasized.

21. There need be no unemployment among steel during 1962. But Government unemployment figures will remain high. Foreign competition, due to low wages abroad, will be an important factor. Women will prefer to work in air-conditioned factories and have their home pantries filled with precooked foods.

22. Labor unrest will grow in extent and power. The Kennedy Administration is friendly to union leaders and their demands. There will be demands for more "fringes" in 1962. A steel strike is possible.

23. This means that with increased taxes, prices of retail products will be higher. This will be blamed on "inflation" of money; but it will be due to inflation of living standards.

24. The real value of the dollar will decline slightly during 1962, due to the decrease in the productivity of labor. The electronics industry will temporarily suffer in 1962 if atomic warfare is outlawed. But otherwise the electronics industry will increase for some years to come and hold up the dollar value. Watch polymer chemicals and "epoxy" cements.

25. There will be enough money for mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration in 1962. Plenty of money will be available for mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, although this supply varies with different sections of the country. Interest rates on conventional loans not having any government guarantees will be a little higher. Real estate people will worry about the public's desire to build, rather than about their obtaining mortgage money.

26. The kilowatt hours of electricity will increase in 1962. (Continued on Page 6)

County, State Elections Are Set This Year

Cumberland Also To Elect Officials

One of the significant facts about the new year starting today is that it is the occasion for state and county elections.

Because the once-every-four-years election takes place in 1962, the office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement assumes a position of greater importance.

It is in this office that candidates for county offices must file on or before March 5, which is 70 days before the May 15 primary election. So far only one candidate actually has filed his papers with John R. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, the Democratic and Republican registrars. He is C. William Welsh, 35, of 205 East Laing Avenue, who filed as a Republican candidate for county commissioner subject to the May 15 primary election. He filed on November 8.

The impending election also is expected to stimulate voter registration. Any person of 21 years who will have lived in Allegany County one year on or before November 6 may register now and vote in both the primary election as well as the general election on November 6. Similarly, any person who will have reached his 21st birthday on or before November 6 may register and vote in the primary election as well.

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Neat are on duty Monday through Friday, except holidays, from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p. m. for the registration of voters.

There also will be visits to the chief communities around the county before the April 14 deadline. No one will be permitted to register in the 30 days immediately before the primary election.

Persons who have failed to vote since 1956 must re-register. Their names were removed from the poll books last November for failure to vote in five years.

Cumberlanders will get to vote four times this year, as municipal elections will be held this summer. The city primary is June 5, the general election June 19.

Rotary Club To Meet
The Cumberland Rotary Club will meet tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the YMCA. Rev. Maurice Robertson will give the annual New Year's message.

Red Cross Cites Blood Donor Slump

Bloodmobile Visits Set Next Week

The Johnstown Regional Red Cross Blood Center is experiencing one of its seasonal slumps periods, according to Mrs. Harry Beneman, blood chairman for the Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Mrs. Beneman said the Christmas-New Year's holiday period is second only to the "summer doldrums" when it comes to critical shortages of blood donors and therefore, inventories are very low.

Steps are now being taken to offset this annual dropoff in donations, but the center anticipates difficulty in meeting the demand for blood until the latter part of January. All chapters are urged to meet or exceed their quotas.

Two Red Cross Bloodmobile visits are scheduled in this area in January. The first is Tuesday, January 9 at the American Legion Home, Frostburg, from noon until 6 p. m., and the other at the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, Wednesday, January 10, from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m.

A. C. Howard, chairman of the Kelly-Springfield blood bank, states the plant is already scheduling donors and a joint group representing management and labor will be in charge of the visit.

When the bloodmobile unit visited the Kelly plant last June, employees donated 229 pints of blood and it is hoped that the plant can come up to this record during the January 10 visit.

Mrs. Beneman urges residents of Allegany County to start off the New Year by donating a pint of blood to help those who cannot help themselves.

Christmas Tree Collection Set

Christmas trees will be collected in Cumberland on January 10, 11 and 12 in the various sections of the city, according to the R&R Sanitary Service, city garbage contractors.

All Yule trees should be placed on the curbing by 7 a. m. Trees in the West Side area will be collected January 10, in the North Cumberland section January 11 and in the South End on January 12.

Auxiliary To Meet

The Mothers' Auxiliary of Troop 6, Cub and Boy Scouts, will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the scout room of SS. Peter and Paul par-

Cresaptown Named Critical Sewage Area

Most Sewer Lines Not Approved

Only a few houses in the Cresaptown area have properly installed septic systems and none of the sewer lines leading to a stream which runs through the town are approved, according to a report by the Maryland State Health Department, Allegany County Health Department, Dr. Ross Cameron, acting deputy state health officer and J. Byron Dowling, senior sanitarian.

The report designates Cresaptown along with Bowling Green, Roberts Place, Potomac Park and Fairgo as areas with critical sewage problems. The report has been referred to the Allegany County Sanitary Commission for action and copies have been forwarded to the County Commissioners.

The state and county health department reports states that in reviewing the development of Cresaptown it found that throughout the years dwellings had been erected on small lots with little thought given to an adequate method of sewage disposal. Many sewer lines, particularly from houses or groups of houses with proximity to the stream running through the center of town, are discharging raw sewage directly into this stream.

In other cases sewage runs directly, or only through a septic tank, into ditches along the street, often going under these streets and draining out into vacant lots or into small streams feeding into the larger creek.

According to the report an estimated 66 per cent of the 520 houses in Cresaptown contribute to these sewage conditions. It states there are 43 unapproved sewer lines discharging into the stream in the 880-yard section running through the center of the town. In addition to this, 45 roadside ditches and catch basins contain sewage in varying degrees, from raw sewage to wash water.

As a result of these improper sewage disposal systems, the Health Department reports it has received numerous complaints from neighbors and from the County Roads Department, which is also faced with the problem of sewage-filled drainage ditches and catch basins.

Ordinarily when a complaint is received an investigation is made by a Health Department sanitarian, recommendations for corrections are made and the necessary follow-up procedures are taken, the department said.

In the case of sewage conditions in Cresaptown, however, the department reports no individual solution seems to be available for the majority of cases. Undersize lots, poor soil conditions, complexity of existing sewer lines make it impossible to install satisfactory individual sewage disposal systems on most lots, the department has concluded.

New Shrine Board For New Year

An expanded board of directors and a potentate's advisory committee to the board have been made necessary by the $250,000 expansion of Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club and the rapid growth of Ali Ghan Temple's membership. Above are members of the two groups which will guide the operations of the club, which will be managed, beginning Thursday, by Gerd Ortmann, now maitre d'hotel at the Barclay Hotel in New York. Seated,
